EMERALDS AGAIN

North Common Wonders Defeat Florences

IN A MAGNIFICENTLY PLAYED GAME.

Over 2500 People Sweltered and Cheered.

Emeralds 5, Florence 3. Such was the result of the hottest game and the best played one that the league has seen this season.

There were over 2500 people present and notwithstanding the severity of the heat which must certainly have affected many they cheered their favorites and had a good time generally.

There was great speculation previous to the game as to its result but there was little Florence money when the time came to bet. Odds were offered 5 to 3 on the North common boys but there were few takers.

There was one unfortunate feature about the game and it was the presence of Umpire Lynch on the field. Mr. Lynch is a good umpire and an honest one but objection was raised to him from the fact that he belongs at the Emerald end of the city and is a "chum" of many of the players. The Florence people were decidedly opposed to him while the Emeralds were not particular about having him. So it was expected that this decision would cause trouble. To make matters worse he made three bad decisions, one on judgement of a foul ball, another in declaring a base runner safe when he was out and a third for allowing Donovan first base after he had run out of the line. As all three favored the Emeralds, the Florence people went wild and some of the team acted more like school boys than professional ball players. Regan and Ryan were the most sensible men in the team, and their playing can be judged by the score. The Florence team had an alleged coacher with them who they should leave in Dracut when they play ball, for he did more harm than good for his team.

After the game Manager Day made a protest but it didn't go and the Emeralds got the money.

In the very first inning, Kane of the Emeralds made a running catch that would do credit to a national leaguer, and from that out the game was replete with magnificent plays and a few bad errors.

It was a pitcher's battle throughout and some of the hits credited were not clean, but still were such as to be scored as hits.

Everyone played with a snap that was astonishing, and it is safe to say that such playing, if continued, will give base ball such a boom as it never received before in Lowell.

Ryan played the best game of any, though there were many right after him.

Garrigan, Muzzey and Donovan were like three stone walls by which nothing could pass, while Dan Murphy and "Gun" Regan played in a manner worth going miles to see. The score:

CATHOLIC NOTES.

The Xaverian Brothers of St. Patrick's school have returned from their annual retreat at St. John's college, Danvers, Mass. At the retreat were members of the order from Lawrence, East Boston, Cambridge, and other cities to the number of 50. The convention of brothers of the order will be held at St. Mary's seminary, at Baltimore.

Very Rev. Fr. Guillard, O. M. I., and Rev. Fr. Torte, O. M. I., of this city, are pleasantly passing a few weeks at the beautiful home of the Gray Nuns on Lafayette street, Salem. The convent is finely located on one of the best streets in Salem, and in the rear of the building is a large garden which overlooks the water. Rev. Fr. Torte though quite feeble is able to perform the duties of his calling and says mass every morning, while Fr. Guillard is in excellent health.

Rev. Fr. Dacey, O. M. I., is attending to the pastoral duties of St. John's parish, North Chelmsford, during the absence of Rev. Fr. Shaw and some of his Lowell friends attended mass at his church yesterday. Among them were Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Walker. Concone's mass was sung during which Mrs. Walker assisted the choir in her usual artistic manner.

Lincoln Square Notes.

Clerk Levi Stevens of the Lincoln square drug store, is to spend his vacation at "Maplewood Farm," New Boston, N. H.

City workmen have moved the urinal at the Lincoln square. It was for a long time an "eye sore" and nuisance.

The bank wall at the Abraham Lincoln school is under way.

Agent Drury would do well to make the driver of horses in a well-known Chelmsford street wood yard be more careful in his treatment of his animals when bringing them to the Lincoln square trough to drink. After horses do a decidedly hard day's work on the "tread mill" for cutting the wood, or in trucking about the city, the animals are then ridden bareback to said trough. After barely tasting the water the horses are driven at breakneck speed back to the stable. The lives of pedestrians are endangered by such driving.

A halt should be called. Another class of horse owners should be seen to, and they are the Jewish peddlers of Chelmsford street from Howard street to Lincoln square. Not only on week days but on Sundays horses have been sent to the Lincoln square trough without a halter or driver. A few days ago a couple of elderly ladies were nearly run over by an unharnessed horse turned out to go to the watering trough.

TAX RATE $15

Announcement Made by the Assessors Today.

THE LOWEST RATE IN MANY YEARS.

Inevitable Result of Democratic Covernment.

Under a democratic mayor the tax rate of the city of Lowell for the year of 1896 is lower than in many years.

The assessors announced this morning that the tax rate for this year will be $15 per $1000 which is remarkably low and the result of a democratic administration.

It is needless to state that real estate owners are made happy by the announcement.

The rates of the past 6 years have been as follows: 1891, $15.60; 1892, $16.80; 1893, $16.40; 1894, $17.40; 1895, 18; 1896, $15.

FUNERALS.

CAMPBELL—The funeral of Edward Campbell took place from his late residence, 175 Church street, Saturday afternoon, Rev. George S. Sinclair was the officiating clergyman. The interment was in the Edson cemetery and the pall bearers were Messrs. Abraham Thompson, John P. Elliott, Andrew Devine and John N. Gilson.

MELVIN—The funeral of Sarah J. Melvin occurred yesterday afternoon from her late home, 41 Marion street. Services were conducted by Rev. R. A. Greene, pastor of Grace Universalist church. Interment was in No. 2 burial ground Gorham street. The pall bearers were Messrs. William K. Aldrich, Phillip G. Cote, Horace Kittredge and Charles Melvin.

DADMAN—The funeral of Miss Isabella Dadman took place this afternoon from her late home in Chelmsford Centre, services being conducted by Rev. Granville Pierce, pastor of the Unitarian church, that village. The deceased was the daughter of Nathan P., and Martha A. Dadman, and died on Friday last at the age of 51 years. Her disease was neuralgia of the brain. She had been seriously ill about a week and her suffering was so great that it was necessary for the last three or four days of her life to keep her under the influence of opiates. Her nearest surviving relatives are a sister, Miss Martha E. Dadman, who resided with her in Chelmsford, and Girard P. Dadman, city clerk of Lowell. She also leaves an aunt, Mrs. Julia Axtell, a member of the household, and another aunt, Mrs. Elvira Dickinson, a resident of the town.

COX—The funeral of Margaret, infant daughter of Fred and Kate Cox, took place yesterday afternoon from the home of her parents, 35 Rogers street. The burial was in the Edson cemetery.

JUDKINS—The funeral of Miss Annie C. Judkins took place yesterday afternoon from his late home, 22 West Bowers street. Services were conducted by Rev. George F. Kenngott. Burial was in the Lowell cemetery. The deceased was the daughter of Charles H. Judkins and was a prominent member of the John Street Congregational church, and was always an active worker in the young peoples society of the church.

NORTH CHELMSFORD.

The Young Unions of this place defeated the Young South Ends of Lowell Saturday afternoon in a well-played game by a score of 14 to 12. The game was exciting until the last man was out. Ripley and Trell were the battery for the Young Unions. The game was a good one for young teams.

Mr. Patrick S. Ward, the well-known tea man, had his team badly broken last Friday night. He left the outfit standing close by his stable, when his horse started breaking the team.

Mr. Edward Fox spent Saturday enjoying the salt water breezes at Lynn.

Yesterday the electric cars were packed on this line, all passengers wending their way to the Crystal lake grove, where a band concert was given by McElroy's orchestra of Lowell.

Miss Lizzie Nelligan of East Cambridge is spending her vacation at the home of her cousin, Miss Nellie Ward.

Rev. John J. Dacey of the Immaculate Conception church, Lowell, celebrated mass in St. John's church, yesterday, and delivered an eloquent sermon on the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin. On Saturday, the feast day of the assumption, mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock.

Last night the power of the electric cars was very weak at times and several cars were delayed.

Will Hear Bryan.

Editor Edward Gallagher of the Sun is in New York enjoying his vacation. He will represent the Sun at the Bryan meeting in Madison Square garden on Wednesday next. Editor Gallagher is accompanied by his wife.

POPULISTS QUIT

Will Make No More Concessions,

BUT WILL STAND BY CANDIDATE WATSON.

Candidate Bateman Talks Loudly.

Portland, Me., Aug. 10.—A special to The Sunday Telegram from Lewiston contains an interview with the Populist candidate for governor, L. C. Bateman. In answer to the question, what will be the result of Bryan's refusal to accept Tom Watson as a running mate, Mr. Bateman said:

"Provision was made for that emergency at the St Louis convention. We shall simply pull Bryan down and substitute the name of Colonel Norton, who was the candidate of the "Middle-of-the-Road" men, and who polled nearly 600 votes. We have gone just as far as we shall ever go in the direction of concession. The Populists will not accept Sewall as a candidate, and neither threats nor bribes will serve them a hair's breadth from this determination. The St. Louis convention settled that fact. The feeling against Sewall was simply overwhelming. In the first place he is not a logical candidate for a movement of this nature. To make a platform denouncing national banks and then nominate a national bank vice president to stand on it is an act of perfidy and folly, of which the Democratic party alone could be guilty. Because the Democrats committed this folly it is no sign that we should be equally willing to make asses of ourselves. It would be on the same principle as the Prohibitionists nominating a saloon keeper who just recovered from an attack of the delirium tremens; or the devil being called to sprinkle holy water. The Democrats in their greed to grab everything in sight simply got their foot into it. We shall not follow suit. We have nominated brave Tom Watson. He is an ideal and logical candidate. If the Democrats want our 2,000,000 votes they must pull Sewall out and take our man. That is our ultimatum. We shall not budge an inch from this position. They can do this act of justice or take the consequences. The People's party organization must be preserved at all hazards. We have but little faith that we shall get free coinage even if the Democrats win. We certainly shall not get it unless we are here to watch them.

"When we see such spoilsmen as Gorman, Dave Hill and Tammany Hall swinging into line for Bryan, it is not calculated to give us Populists much confidence. Here in Maine the Democrats are claiming to be for free coinage, and yet every one of their candidates for congress are gold men, and if elected will vote for the single gold standard. It is this hypocrisy that creates universal distrust. The gold men, one by one, are swinging into line for Bryan. They will secure just as many congressmen of their stripe as possible. These men will then unite with the Republicans to block all silver legislation.

"That is the game that is to be sprung upon the country. It is the old, old story of hypocrisy and deceit. All history shows that no reform was ever brought about by an old party. It cannot be done. We are willing to help elect Bryan, but it will only demonstrate anew that no good can come out of Nazareth.

"We are not willing to give up our organization, however, in order to do this. The very fact that the Democrats want us to disband before accepting our aid shows their lack of sincerity. We shall not accommodate them, however gratifying it might be to their vanity. We shall stand by Tom Watson, to a man, in every state, except one or two that are under control of fusionists. We believe that Watson will be equally true to us, and not resign, however tempting a bribe may be offered him. It is fortunate that we have such a leader in this crisis. A weak man would be tempted to betray us. These are the times that try men's souls, and glorious Tom Watson will prevent the disruption and destruction of our party. Time will show that we shall get no reform from the Democratic party, no matter how fair their promises. Then the organized and compact People's party will forge to the front.

"Here in Maine we are going to make a vigorous fight, and we shall gain heavily. The Democrats have put up a man for governor who was a gold standard man six weeks ago, but who, like Saul of Tarsus, saw a new light after the Chicago convention open up the vision of the Portland custom house. As I have before stated all their nominees for congress are gold men. Without even a blush of shame they play the role of hypocrites. They are doomed to the most terrible defeat, for the sense of decency is not yet dead in the human heart. The same old gang of pie-counter politicians are leading them. They would flop back to gold again tomorrow if it would bring them the offices any quicker. The People's party is the only party in this state that represents the free coinage idea from principle. We expect to have the aid of Tom Watson and Senator Butler during the campaign. The people are with us, and we have no fear of the result. We have fought this gang of pie-counter paupers for 20 years, and we shall continue to fight them to the end. They are in this thing for revenue only, while the Populists are in it from principle. May God pity Bryan and his cause if his supporters in other states are governed by the same motives as are his supporters in Maine."

SMITH TO RESIGN.

Cannot Stand Cleveland's Opposition to Candidate Bryan.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The Star says that the retirement of Secretary Smith from the cabinet may be expected, and it assigns as the reason the fact that the secretary and the president are not in accord on the present political situation. Mr. Smith believes that notwithstanding the free silver platform adopted at Chicago, to which he continues, opposed Democrats should support the ticket, while Mr. Cleveland, The Star states, is strongly and positively opposed to such a course, and believes effective measures should be taken to accomplish Bryan's defeat.

The Star adds: The retirement of Mr. Smith, whenever it comes, will be of his own motion, and because his sense of the fitness of things would not admit of his remaining in such close relations to the administration without being in entire harmony with Mr. Cleveland. The fact that their disagreement is merely one of political policy does not relieve the situation much, though it does make it impossible that there should be a personal rupture between them.

It is warrantable to say that the attitude of Mr. Cleveland toward the Bryan ticket is much more positive and aggressive than has been indicated by any of the many guesses that have been indulged in on the subject. There is nothing passive in his attitude. He is intent upon the accomplishment of Bryan's defeat, and it is said that he can be depended upon to do anything he thinks will best serve to that end.

A Bomb For Hanna.

New York, Aug. 10.—The McKinley league state executive committee has written a long letter to Mark Hanna, in which H. F. Gibbs, the Republican national committeeman for New York, and the regular organization of the Republican party in the city and state, is denounced. It reviews in detail the alleged wrong-doing of some of the Republican leaders, touches upon the methods adopted by the organization in the last state legislature, and accuses Mr. Gibbs and his associates of using their official positions to disrupt the Republican party in the county of New York, if not to prevent the election of the Republican ticket. The manifesto says: "We believe that in a majority of the districts the party is thoroughly and heartily desirous of the election of McKinley and Hobart, but in many places the machinery of the party is under the control of discredited and unscrupulous traitors."

Down to Hard Work.

Cleveland, Aug. 10.—Chairman Hanna left at midnight for Chicago to give his attention to the western campaign. He said yesterday that he understood that there was plenty of work awaiting him, he having received word to the effect that more than 1000 Republicans were waiting to see him to get the details of campaign work. Major Charles Dick, who is to have charge of the Chicago headquarters, starts for Chicago today, and the work of the campaign will be pushed from now on.

To Send Delegates to Indianapolis.

Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 10.—A call has been issued requesting the Gold Democrats of Vermont to meet in a mass convention at Bellows Falls, Aug. 13, to elect eight delegates to the national Democratic convention at Indianapolis, Sept. 2, and to nominate four presidential electors in support of the ticket nominated there.

Wreck of the St. Paul.

Monterey, Cal., Aug. 10.—The Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamer St. Paul went ashore at Point Pinos yesterday morning, and will probably be a total wreck. There were about 50 passengers on board, but all were landed safely, and no lives were lost. There was a dense fog at the time, and it is supposed the captain lost his bearings. The St. Paul ran between San Francisco and San Pedro, carrying freight and passengers, and was on her way up from San Pedro at the time of the wreck.

A Wonderful Invention.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Consul Germaine, in a report to the state department from Zurich, Switzerland, tells of a new invention made by the French Ship Engineer Bozin. It is called "Bozin's roller express," and it is claimed that by the device the movements of boats will be increased to about 62 miles an hour. This vessel will not slide, as in the case of ordinary ships, but rolls on the water by means of enormous hollow wheels or rollers. It consists of a large platform, supported by movable wheels or rollers.

Young, but Unhappy.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Hattie Simmons, 17 years old, a domestic living in the family of Wolff Levy, 34 Wall street, committed suicide last night by taking gas. She had been despondent for some weeks over some unknown cause. The girl was found on the bed, while attached to the gas jet was a long pipe, the end of which was in the mouth of the victim. The gas was turned on, and it is probable that death was painless.

Highwaymen Near Haverhill.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 10.—John Sullivan, while on his way home to Groveland, late Saturday night, was held up by three men on the outskirts of this city, and robbed of a gold watch and chain, besides $12 in cash. Sullivan fought the men desperately, but was overpowered after receiving numerous bruises. There is no clew to the highwaymen.

Venezuela's Importance Recognized.

Berlin, Aug. 10. — Owing to the increased importance of the commercial relations between Germany and Venezuela, the government has promoted Count von Rex, the diplomatic representative at Carneas, to the rank of minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary.

Short of Troops.

Madrid, Aug. 10.—Senor Marcelo de Azcarraga, minister of war, is considering a scheme to introduce conscription, in order to facilitate the recruiting of the forces of the Spanish army for service in Cuba.

Officer Brought Him Down.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Three young South Boston toughts held up a man on Broadway at an early hour Sunday morning, and tried to rob him. A policeman, hearing the cries, ran to the assistance of the man, and the three toughs took to their heels. One of them, Daniel Kelley, was not as fleet-footed as the rest, and the officer kept him in sight. Kelley, however, refused to stop, and the officer fired a shot after him. The bullet hit Kelley in the back of the head, and he dropped. At the hospital the bullet was found beneath the skin of the head, and the injured man will probably recover.

Rebels Lost Heavily.

London, Aug. 10.—Earl Grey, the administrator of the British South Africa company, has telegraphed the government from Buluwayo that Colonel Alderson attacked, on Aug. 3, and carried at the point of the bayonet, Makonis kraal. He killed 200 rebels and captured a large quantity of cattle and sheep. Alderson had three of his force killed and several wounded. Earl Grey notifies the government that this victory completes the opening of the Salisbury and Umtali

SOME CITY HALL MATTERS

SCHOOL JANITORS RESUMED WORK THIS MORNING.

City Treasurer Serves Notice on Delinquent Taxpayers, One of Them Being Placed on the Mechanics Hall Building—Tomorrow's Ball Game Is Being Discussed.

The superintendent of public building started the school janitors preparing and cleaning the school buildings preparatory for the school opening this morning, and by the first of September everything will be in readiness for the pupils. There have been extensive repairs on a number of the school buildings and the janitors will find plenty to do from now until the opening of the schools. All the janitors have been re-engaged.

The notices served by City Treasurer Coburn for delinquent taxes are out, and some eight pieces of property are offered for sale. Five owners have settled with the treasurer. Among the notices is one tacked on to the Middlesex Mechanics Building.

The all-absorbing topic among the councilmen is the great base ball match which will take place tomorrow afternoon at Mountain Rock between the Boston and Lowell councilmen. Work has been received by City Messenger Cahill that sixty of the councilmen and their friends from Boston will arrive in Lowell on a special train at 1.38, and will be met at the depot where special electrics will take the party to Lakeview, where the battle of a lifetime will be fought on the ball ground at Mountain Rock.

Assistant City Clerk Billy McCarty in speaking of the game says that he will wager most any money that there will be more passed balls than at any game played this year. But he intends to assist the Lowell councilmen as a back stop.

LOCAL NOTES.

The number of new streets laid around Lowell during the summer is greater than all the new streets named for five years previous.

Lowell lodge of Odd Fellows and Evening Star Rebekah lodge will have an excursion to Nantasket beach on Wednesday next.

The William B. Spalding building, now in the process of erection on Prescott street, will be five stories high and the front of buff brick.

There is a noticeable increase in the attendance at the First Baptist and Kirk street Congregational churches since the new pastors have entered upon their labors.

The alarm from box 5 shortly before one o'clock yesterday afternoon was for a blaze in an unoccupied tenement on Rock street where tramps had been accustomed to sleep. Damage slight.

An open-air Spiritualist meeting was held yesterday afternoon in a grove on Chelmsford street beyond the city line. These services are to be held every Sunday afternoon during the warm weather. Pews have been placed in position for the benefit of those wishing to attend.

IN HALE'S BROOK

Was Found the Body of a Woman.

THE UNFORTUNATE WAS MRS. BRIDGET WALL.

Death Supposed to Have Been Accidental.

The body of a woman who is said to be Bridget Wall 23 Carpet lane was taken from Hale's brook early yesterday morning. She was about 45 years of age and when found no money or anything else in her clothing would her indentification except a card bearing the words, "Campbell, employment office, Boston." A man named Underwood heard the cries of a woman for assitance coming from the direction of Hale's brook. He ran to that locality, and with the assistance of railroad men took the body from the water.

At Congress street it is reported that the unknown might be Rebecca Eaton, who formerly resided in that street. Mrs. Eaton's son-in-law visited the undertaker's rooms, but he said it was not Mrs. Eaton.

People who were near Hale's brook soon after the body was found say they saw indications of a struggle on the bank. It is also said that there were bruises on the woman's body. These circumstances were reported to the medical examiner, but they were not deemed sufficient by him to cause him to order an inquest. The body was identified this forenoon. The deceased is survived by a husband and two children.

Police Court—Pickman, J.

In police court before Judge Pickman this forenoon, 22 drunks appeared, of which number four were arrested Sunday, four were continued drunks and the remainder were arrested Saturday or early this morning.

The majority received fines ranging from $1 to $5, but John McGann for his imbibing received a sentence of four months in jail—and for the larceny of a chicken from the Union market received an additional sentence of two months. John Carney and James Martin, both illegally keeping liquor, were each fined $30. Frederick Lambert and Napoleon Renaud for the larceny of clothing from a building were each sentenced eight months to jail. Daniel Gray charged with keeping open a barber shop on the Lord's day, was continued until to-morrow morning to hear the evidence of the man who was shaved, but who was not present in court at the hour of trial.

Commencing on Thursday, Aug. 13th, at 10 o'clock a. m.

The Goldbug Conspiracy.

The demonetization of silver is a progressive process. It began in secrecy and has been pursued by devious paths ever since. At the beginning no one dared to make the proposal that the Republican platform of 1896 contains. Emboldened by success, the conspirators are pushing on to bolder plans. Both silver coin and greenbacks are legal tender today. The first point of attack is the greenback. It is proposed to retire them and the treasury notes, thus still further contracting the currency, lowering prices and advancing the value of bonds. When the greenbacks are retired, there will come the final stroke of all—namely, the entire and absolute disuse of silver as a money metal and the deprivation of legal tender quality from the silver coin in existence. We shall then have reached the absolute gold standard. Gold alone will be money. Everything will be payable in gold, no matter when the debt was contracted. Prices will shrink in an unheard of manner. Every debtor will be destroyed financially, and the holders of the world's debts will own the earth and the fullness thereof.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The gold monometallists tell us bimetallism is anarchy, repudiation and several other bad things, but that it would be a good thing if the leading nations of the world would consent. But if it is all that is bad for one nation to proclaim it, how can the other leading nations make it "holy and righteous?"

A VERY SERIOUS CHARGE

LAWRENCE MOTHER ARRESTED FOR INFANTICIDE.

She was Caught in the Act of Burying the Baby in a Cellar—Autopsy will be Held.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 10.—Lenora Yeksvowska, a Pole, 21 years of age, and unmarried, was arrested yesterday on the charge of killing her newly born babe. It appears that she gave birth to the infant Saturday noon, and Jacob Brackenwak, a lodger in the house, on going into the cellar Saturday night discovered her in the act of burying the child. He took the child away from the mother, and upon finding it dead sent for an undertaker. The latter notified the medical examiner, who, after making the autopsy, ordered the arrest of the woman, but refused to make known the result of his labors.

FOR PRESIDENT,

WILLIAM J. BRYAN of Nebraska

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

ARTHUR SEWALL of Maine

Contrary to the predictions of the Boston Herald the Maine democrats endorsed the Chicago platform and candidates without a ripple. The gold men, if there were any, kept quiet.

The Maine democrats intend to arouse the silver sentiment that lies dormant in that state. They will attempt to carry Maine for Bryan, and with Bryan's assistance may succeed.

The republicans have organized the Lawton guards and revived the Blaine and Logan club. We may expect to see before the campaign is over the Vacuum troops and Poore gerrymander dragoons.

The republicans are showing considerable activity in preparing for an aggressive campaign. The republicans may fight with all the vigor at their command, but their candidate will be defeated in November.

It is now understood that the plant of the defunct Boston Standard will be utilized for the publication of a free silver paper by the editor of the New York Journal. This will be another case in which evil will result in good.

The horse deal committee expects to embarass Mayor Courtney and the city messenger by the investigation of the repairs on the boiler. They will only expose the honesty and circumspection of the mayor and his assistant in this transaction.

It should be remembered by the voters of this city that the biennial elections must be defeated at the polls in November. It will be submitted for the decision of the people, and as it is not for the people's interest, they should all vote solidly against it.

The Boston Herald devotes nearly a column of space daily to decrying Hon. Geo. Fred Williams. It is paid for so doing by the gold bugs, but not all their gold paid out for mud slinging will turn the people against him. He will be the next nominee for governor.

Bryan's trip eastward is one continous ovation. Seldom, if ever, in the history of this country has any candidate been tendered such a popular reception everywhere he went. His speeches have been cheered to the echo all along the line. But this popular applause will dwindle into insignificance compared with his reception at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday. The Sun will have a representative at that demonstration and will give the entire speech with the description of the enthusiasm and the incidents of the meeting at the earliest moment.

GOLD DEMOCRATS.

The gold democrats of some states are anxious to put up a ticket representing their views, and in opposition to the regular democratic ticket. In that extremity the gold men would expose their weakness and would then constitute the bolters or those who oppose the rule of the majority.

Should they place a ticket in the field the insignificant vote received would expose their weakness before the country. They call the silver men pirates and anarchists, but the men who revolt against the rule of the majority are far more anarchistic than are the men who stand by the majority.

Anarchists want to tear down the fabric of government supported by the majority, and with them, in this respect, must be classed the bolters who refuse to recognize majority rule, either in party, state or in union.

The republicans of the city, it seems, have not even a semblance of a political conscience, since after effecting such an outrageous deal in the gerrymander of the city, they now intend to rob the democracy of their representation in the legislature. It is true that the democrats in the Massachusetts legislature cannot exert an influence upon legislation, but nevertheless the people want the representation in that body that belongs to them. Chairman Poore seems to outrival any of his predecessors in planning a good political steal. In fact, if he keeps on, he will be the equal of W. H. I. Hayes or Daniel Varnum. If he succeeds in effecting the proposed steal of the representative districts, we may expect to find some public square laid out for a park in his honor to bear his name after the manner of Varnum park. The republicans have it entirely in their power to rob the democrats of representation in the legislature, and if the county commission is willing to be a party to the outrage, we shall soon see gerrymander number two carried out with the unblushing effrontery with which the people were robbed of their rights in the common council, school board and overseers of the poor in the redistricting of the ward.

RICH RED BLOOD is the foundation of good health. That is why Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier, gives HEALTH.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

RETURNS TO FREE TRADE.

New South Wales Has Had Enough of the Protection Policy.

The ministry just returned to power in New South Wales has determined to inaugurate a more complete free trade policy, as a result of the emphatic and specific demand of the electors. In a report made by Vice Commercial Agent Knightley at Newcastle, it is declared that the government went into office on a free trade issue and has set about redeeming its pledges to the people.

In connection with the removal of protective duties an income tax measure has been introduced, with an exemption on incomes below $973, and a land tax, with an exemption on values below $1,168. These features of the free trade programme have been unfavorably received by the wealthy, as was to be expected. But even the wealthy will find that the general reduction in the prices of the necessaries of life will compensate for the call thus made on their pockets for the support of the government.

The fact that New South Wales has returned to a liberal policy is one more evidence of the evils of protection. If there is one country which could offer something approaching a reasonable excuse for protection it is New South Wales, which is yet in its infancy socially, politically and commercially.

But the people have learned, as a hard practical fact, the folly of the cheap dinner cheap man theory which furnished the landed gentry of England with their sole argument against the repeal of the corn laws, arguments which are heard with painful repetition in the United States today. They have learned that any taxation beyond that necessary for the support of government is a direct violation of the elementary principles of liberty. The sooner this country learns it the sooner will it witness its greatest measure of prosperity.—St. Louis Republic.

ENGLAND'S PROSPERITY.

Free Trade Vindicated by the Largest Surplus In Her History.

Says England's chancellor of the exchequer in presenting the annual budget statement: "The year has been one of unexampled prosperity. Not only is the surplus the largest ever known in the history of the country—a state of affairs which would be in itself highly auspicious—but, what is of far greater significance, the revenue collected and the expenditures made exceed in amount those of any preceding year. This indicates the highest kind of prosperity, since it shows that the country is gaining in productive power."

Next full the high protection stumpers will be warning their beloved fellow citizens against free trade England. Yet Great Britain, beleaguered by all the protective powers of the earth, and having no protection of her own with which to defend herself, shows up a year's account of prosperity that is the envy of many nations.

It will be incumbent upon the extremist in protective matters to explain this showing next fall. None of the Republican journals if now attempting to account for it.

The fact is, that Great Britain has been diligently cutting ice and finding a market for it.—Boston Globe.

TELLER AND HIS LIKE.

Men Who In a Great Crisis Stood Forth as Patriots and Not as Partisans.

Henry M. Teller has won for himself a place in history. In a great crisis he stood forth as a patriot. It is no easy matter to sever the political ties of a lifetime; it is no easy matter to stand before a hostile and angry crowd and preach a gospel which they reject, but Senator Teller had the courage to do it. Some shouted "renegade," some called him a "bolter," and hundreds hissed their venom at him, but the voice of his conscience rose above the din of the multitude, drowning out all other sounds, and that conscience called him "patriot." He was present at the birth of the Republican party, he espoused the cause for which it stood and brought to its support all the energy of a strong and vigorous mind, all the zeal of a warm and generous heart. Years ago he noted with apprehension the growing influence of the capitalistic classes in the party's councils, but his love for the party was so deep that his hope overcame his fears. But when the convention at St. Louis bowed to the will of Wall street and under the threat of a withdrawal of campaign contributions accepted a platform written by the money changers, he was left no choice, and abandonment of the party became a duty.

Issues make parties. The money question is now the paramount issue, and voters must make their party associations fit their convictions. The example of Senator Teller is taken for the sake of illustration. He is conspicuous because of his great ability and high official position, and yet all who imitate him are deserving of like praise. Dubois, Cannon, Hartman and all the others who followed Teller out of the convention have practiced the same virtues and given evidence of the same moral courage.

Congressman Towne, who, though not a delegate, was present and participated in all their plans, is worthy to stand by the side of Teller. His state conventions, both Democratic and Republican, declared for gold, and yet his convictions are so deep that he is willing to stand by them, even though it may mean political death to him.

Disintegration has begun, and it can have but one result. The west and south, the great wealth producing sections of the country, will dominate the government and restore equality in legislation.—Omaha World-Herald.

Popular Populism.

If the restoration of silver is Populism, we shall behold the biggest wave of popular and populous populistic Populism that ever popped a popper.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE MEXICAN PROGRAMME.

The Country Is Prosperous, and Has No Use For the Gold Standard.

The newspapers of North America which advocate gold monometallism assert that the prosperity of Mexico is due entirely to the fact that its currency is "inflated"—that is to say, that it is given a supposed value which in reality it has not, and that it has brought into existence an activity which is anything but normal and on a solid foundation. It is not at all surprising to us that on the eve of a presidential election, which perhaps may be decided in favor of the free coinage of silver and against the gold monometallism, that the "sound money" press of that country should endeavor to deceive the American public with regard to the condition of affairs in Mexico.

It is to their interest to make the people believe that Mexico has no foreign market for its "depreciated silver dollar." These assertions are preposterous. Our circulating medium fulfills all the needs of the nation. It supplies the demand created by reason of the activity in our commercial and agricultural affairs. Our bankers are not issuing any more than the usual amount of bonds, which are based upon silver. The mints are not coining dollars in an unusually large quantity. China and Japan are buying these silver dollars in such quantities as to avoid the superabundance of silver in Mexico. Therefore how can it be said then that our circulating medium is defective, whether it be silver or silver certificates?

The reason why Mexico is improving is because the appreciation of gold constitutes a premium upon all Mexico's exports and protects its national industries, thus making it more difficult for foreign manufacturers to compete with our home industries. This fact has awakened the slumbering energy of our people and is also attracting foreign capital to share the large profits which our growing industries afford.

It is true that in order to insure the interests of our debts payable in gold we need more silver dollars than before. However, this is counterbalanced by the increase in the government's revenue. Foreign capital in developing the country has increased the government's revenue, capital invested by men who know that investments in Mexico are safe and profitable.

Our progress is slow, but steady. Therefore not even the most cautious of our bankers is alarmed at the condition of our affairs, and it does not afford any opportunity for ruinous speculations. However, lands prosper for the cultivation of sugar cane, coffee and tobacco and have increased somewhat in value, but the increase has been steady and solid. And it is due to the fact that a large number of capitalists from the republic of the north are investing their money in these industries. These are not the proper symptoms of "inflated" currency, therefore such currency does not exist, and the American press has no occasion to censure us and should look elsewhere for weapons with which to defend its gold standard doctrine, as it will be unable to find them here, for the present at least. This country is very well pleased with its silver currency, with which it pays its debts and continues to advance in spite of the misrepresentation of the American orators and newspapers. It is not our desire that the United States should adopt the free coinage of silver. Our national programme would be seriously obstructed should it do so. We only wish that our neighbors should leave us alone to enjoy in peace the advantages of our silver currency, and that intelligent and enterprising men should continue to come and invest their capital in this country and help in the aggrandizement of our nation.

The Carlisles and the Morgans may do as they please and continue to worship the golden calf as long as they please. Mexico does not need their advice nor ask for their sympathy.—Translated From the Mexican Financier by A. J. Ortiz For Denver News.

Kissing Corners.

In the dark piazza corner
Sways a hammock through the night,
And within its tangling meshes
Lies a maiden—"out of sight!"

Sheltered in the same snug corner,
Where the light is none too clear,
Gently swinging this fair maiden,
Sits a man, in chair drawn near.

From the west the silvery crescent
Throws soft kisses to the trees,
And they murmur back a message,
Lightly stirring in the breeze.

Hushed are all the world's rude noises
In the stillness of the night;
Nature sleeps, her beauties gleaming
In the moon's caressing light.

Not a sound her rest disturbing,
Save the maiden's soft "I won't!"
Which is followed in a moment,
By the same voice murmuring, "Don't!"

Ever thus it is in corners
When the maiden says "I won't!"
For he does, by some queer reasoning,
Every time she murmurs, "Don't!"

Li Hung Chang Asks Many Questions.

HE APPEARS MUCH INTERESTED IN AMERICA.

Personal Characteristics of Chinese Diplomat.

London, Aug. 10.—By special appointment, a press representative was yesterday accorded an interview with Li Hung Chang, England's guest of honor this month. The correspondent was shown into Li Hung Chang's private parlor, in Lord Lonsdale's mansion in Carlton House terrace. A group of servants stood before the door through which the newsman was conducted by Viscount Li, the statesman's son, and who acts as his interpreter.

Li Hung Chang rose and bowed with formal courtesy as his visitor entered, and then shook hands, after which he motioned to a seat opposite to his own. Li was habited in an undress costume, consisting of a plum-colored stuff shirt, a dark blue silk jacket and a black satin cap, with a crimson silk button in the center of the crown, to designate his status as a mandarin. In the front of the cap-band was fixed a large pearl stud, set with diamonds. A diamond ring also glittered on the little finger of his right hand. His shoes were of black satin, trimmed with two lines of green silk, having thick, white felt soles. As the distinguished Oriental took his seat, following his guest's action, his attitude strikingly resembled the numerous published portraits from photographs, so that he would have been readily recognized without information as to his identity.

During the course of the interview, Li most of the time looked his interlocutor straight in the face, his piercing brown eyes suggesting the penetrative power of Roentgen rays. The complexion of the face is a dark bronze, relieved by a thin, straggling gray mustache and imperial. While talking his face becomes animated with an occasional smile, full of perception, accompanied by a gesture. He then relapses into the impassiveness of a bronze idol. His voice is low in pitch, but of sonorous quality, and he speaks with the strong inflections so characteristic of the Chinese tongue.

Li Hung Chang has submitted to interviews a number of times before his arrivel in England, and has seized that rather formidable institution of western civilization with a firm grasp, to direct it rather than to be controlled by it. The method employed by the astute Oriental diplomat in his interviews with newspaper men is to ask and not to answer questions. The American representative found himself besought for information of the arrangements of the coming transit of Li through the United States before opportunity was given to put a query. Li was very eager regarding the program for his tour of the United States and the American arrangements. He asked if Philadelphia was much out of the way of the railroad route from New York to Washington. At this point the Chinese dignitary clapped his hands to call a servant in the Oriental fashion. The servant, clad in native garb, entered, bowed low and retired, and then returned with tea in a covered cup of exquisitely frail and delicate porcelain. While this was partaken of by his caller, Li Hung Chang asked about the special train on the Pennsylvania railroad, which is to be provided for him, and whether it would carry him direct to Vancouver without change. He was informed that probably it would.

Li explained that John Russell Young had written to him asking him to luncheon in Philadelphia, at which he promised that all Li Hung Chang's old friends should be present. Li first met Mr. Young when the latter accompanied General Grant on his tour around the world, and afterward when he became United States minister to China under President Arthur. Li asked if Mr. Young held such a position among Americans as to lead them to follow his arrangements. Being assured of this, he asked cordially after the health of Mr. Young and of General J. H. Wilson and Wharton Barker, whom he had seen in China.

The correspondent said that the greatest regret was felt among Americans that Li Hung Chang would be unable to see sufficient of the United States to obtain a knowledge of the country equally intimate with that obtained of the countries he has already seen. In reply he asserted that he deeply regretted that it was imperative that he should sail from Vancouver on Sept. 14, for which date passage has been engaged for him on the steamer Empress of China.

He was asked if he would like to eat some of the American delicacies, such as terrapin and canvas back ducks, which were likely to be offered to him at American dinners. Li replied to this query with an amused smile, saying: "I should be pleased to taste all such dainties, but I cannot promise to do so, as my teeth are no longer good. For this reason I prefer to confine my diet to Chinese meat."

Here Li Hung Chang called out to the servant in the adjoining room. The latter entered and took from a sideboard a long silver pipe, the bowl of which resembled a spirit lamp. He blew through the bowl, put a pinch of tobacco into it, lighted it with a taper, and then held the stem to the Chinese potentate's lips. Li pulled thrice, with much apparent gratification, which served to exhaust the charge; for the servant removed the pipe, blew out the ashes, refilled the bowl, relit it, and offered the stem to his superior. This was repeated three times before Li had sufficient of the fumes to satisfy his taste.

Following his smoke he asked as to the facilities and shipping of heavy baggage to Vancouver. Having satisfied him upon this point, the correspondent inquired whether Li desired to see the leading silverites and gold standard advocates regarding the question of money during his visit to the United States. Viscount Li replied to this that his father was anxious to learn all that was possible on the question, but his time was so short and he had so much to do while he was in Washington with people connected with the government, that he hoped that those persons wishing to have interviews with him would arrange for them with the Chinese minister at Washington. He would do his best to please everybody, but he desired to economize his time while in the United States as much as possible.

Here another caller was shown into the private parlor, and Li Hung Chang arose with bows and handshake, indicating that the interview was at an end.

Subsequent to this interview Viscount Li said that his father was more pleased with London than with any place he had seen. He was delighted, he said, with the enthusiasm manifested and the cheering of the English crowds. He wanted to know as to the chances for a smooth voyage across the Atlantic at this time of year, as his father, he said, was not a good sailor.

Regarding the opening of China by the building of railroads, Viscount Li said that they were anxious to have the Chinese do it themselves, but this would take some years, and a lot of money. Foreigners, he said, wanted security, but they could not give security without the consent of the government. His father was anxious to confer upon tariff questions while in Washington.

At 10 o'clock Li Hung Chang, in his full dress, drove off from his residence for a sitting for his potrait to a lady artist, a friend of Lady Salisbury, who introduced the artist to Li Hung Chang during the garden party at Hatfield House.

Two sparrers named Tirrell and Bassett settled a personal dispute in the prize ring near Penacook, N. H., and Bassett was knocked out in the fifth round.

Razor Scared a Policeman.

Boston, Aug. 10.—A colored man named William Jackson was complained of yesterday by a woman who gave her name as Annie Williams, as threatening her life. A warrant was issued, and an officer started out to find Jackson. He met the colored man on Tremont street, but the latter pulled out a razor and defied the policeman. The officer fired two shots in the air with the hope of intimidating the man, but the latter closed in on him, and for a few minutes there was a lively fight between the two. Jackson, however, when the crowd began to gather, ran into a neighboring house, and going out the back way, escaped.

Attributed to Alcohol.

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 10.—Medical Examiner Hurd says, as to the autopsy on the body of Mrs. Eliza Crampney, who died suddenly at a house on Grape island, last Wednesday, that he is becoming of the opinion that there was no real cause for suspecting foul play, although the actions of Mr. Mather in abandoning the woman were singular. "The examination of the woman's internal organs," he said, "indicated that death was probably due to alcoholism, a nervous shock which she received by the fall at the hotel being a possible factor in the case."

Mute Testimony In Tragedy.

Halifax, Aug. 10.—An order has been given a carver of this place to make wooden figures representing the bodies of Captain and Mrs. Nash and Mate Blamberg. Cuts and gashes on all three bodies will be reproduced, showing the cuts on Mrs. Nash's face and breast, as well as marking how the fingers were almost severed from her hand, gashes, etc., found on the captain's and mate's bodies being made, and marks set out with red ink. These will be used in evidence as descriptive of how the victims were butchered on board the Herbert Fuller, and will help the jury in understanding the state of affairs when they were first exposed to view.

Coming Home.

Constantinople, Aug. 10.—Miss Clara Barton, president of the American branch of the Red Cross society, has started on her return to the United States, her mission of distributing relief to the Armenian sufferers having been ended.

Cholera Takes a Fresh Start.

Cairo, Aug. 10.—Cholera again shows an increase; and anxiety is felt on account of the absence of reports from the camp of the Egyptian forces on the Nile. It is feared that a serious condition prevails there.

The Ericsson Badly Damaged.

New York, Aug. 10.—An accident which caused upwards of $100,000 damage occurred at the navy yard in Brooklyn Saturday night. The officers at the navy yard were extremely reticent when asked for an explanation of the trouble. As nearly as can be ascertained, a wave caused by a passing Sound steamer, which forced itself past the heavy caisson at the mouth of the dry dock, and capsized it, throwing it into the dock and allowing the water to rush in, was the cause of the mischief. The dock was nearly empty at the time, and the force of the water rushing in caused the moorings of the torpedo boat Ericsson to snap. The torpedo boat was hurled against the end of the dock, carrying away about 12 feet of the forward end of the boat. The Monitor, Puritan and Terror also broke their cables. These boats were not seriously injured, however.

LABOR HARD IN AUSTRIA

It is Trying to Struggle From a Horrible Condition.

Long Hours of Labor and Wages Are Depressingly Low—Yet the Workers Are Organizing and Are Fighting For Better Things—The Curse of "Stone Swallows."

The Austrian trades unions only began to organize about 1889, and one cannot repress a feeling of surprise that so much has been accomplished in a few years. Industry itself is in a curious state. The factory system is just beginning to replace hand labor, and there are all the conflicts which inevitably follow a great industrial change. There are still a large number of hand trades and many small proprietors, or masters, working in their own homes. In Austria one can still see the exquisite skill and artistic taste which often accompany hand labor. Trade guilds, with all their curious regulations, still survive, but they inure largely to the benefit of masters rather than workmen. The latter feel that the trades union is the organization suited to the present age. I found the Austrian workmen very intelligent and level headed. They are enthusiastic yet patient and determined.

Their hours of labor are excessive and the wages so low that it seems incredible that civilized people can exist upon them.

I will give a few examples of the wages paid and briefly sketch the mode of living, so that Americans may realize the task set before the Austrian trades union.

From 10 to 11 hours constitute the average workday, but it is often extended to 12 and even 15 hours.

Common or unskilled labor receives an average of 40 cents a day in Austria. Female hod carriers are paid 24 to 28 cents a day.

Machines have not yet been introduced in the printing trade, and it is considered the best paid in the country. Compositors receive from $5.20 to $6 a week; bricklayers from $3.60 to $3.84 a week; meerschaum workers from $2.80 to $4.80; goldsmiths $5.60; glassworkers from $2 to $2.40. A ladies' tailor doing the very finest work sometimes gets $7.20 a week.

Brewers work from 3 a. m. to 6 p. m., with only one hour's rest at noon. They are paid $3 a week. This trade is well organized and federated with kindred craft. It is preparing for a general eight hour strike next year.

Blacksmiths work 12 hours a day for $3 a week.

Ornamental iron workers toil from sunrise till sunset, sometimes even more than 12 hours daily. Their maximum wage for this highly skilled work scarcely reaches $3 a week.

Cigar makers are government employees and receive from $1.80 to $2 a week.

There is a great building boom in Vienna, Budapest, Prague and other leading cities of Austria, because the government exempts all new buildings from taxation for the first 20 years. The building trades do not even reap the advantage of plentiful employment. The buildings are all of stone or brick covered with a peculiar sort of plaster. A large proportion of the work is done by "stone swallows." From 16,000 to 20,000 come into the cities every year from their huts and fields in Bohemia and Moravia. They work for very low wages, from $2 to $4 a week. When the season is over, they go back to the country and live on potatoes and flour until the next spring. It is impossible to organize this class. They have lowered wages until the most skilled facade workers can only get $7.20 a week for really artistic carving.

Of the 700,000 working people in Vienna it is estimated that 60 per cent do not earn more than $2.40 a week throughout the year.

The textile workers in Bohemia average 80 cents a week and work 12 hours a day. In some districts agricultural laborers are paid from 7 to 20 cents a day.

Of course women must work as well as men or families could not exist. Women usually begin factory work at the age of 14. They continue after marriage. Sometimes the children are taken to the factory and sometimes left alone at home. The children grow up without care and a good standard of character cannot be expected.

A woman's wages will vary from 18 to 40 cents a day, rarely rising above that limit even where she performs skilled labor.

It might be supposed that living is very much cheaper in Austria than in America. It is not cheap enough to permit an approach to the standard of living in the United States.

Most Austrian wageworkers live in two small rooms, a bedroom and a kitchen. No matter how large their family, they can seldom afford more. They usually have city water and sewerage, for the houses are quite modern. The rent for the two rooms varies from $2.80 to $4 a month. There is an extra charge of 12 cents a month for water, and the janitor receives from 8 to 12 cents a month from each family for keeping the halls in order. The charges seem small, but the reader must compare them with the wages.

In the poorest quarters three or four families crowd into one large room to save rent.

Clothing is at least one-third cheaper in Austria than in the United States; so you often see the workmen and their families comfortably dressed.

Potatoes, dumplings, coarse sausages, vegetable soups, black bread and beer form the usual bill of fare. Much of the food is bought ready cooked, as in France. A working woman will often eat a piece of dry bread for breakfast, then go to a cheap restaurant near the factory and make her dinner from a small bowl of watery soup and a spoonful of boiled vegetables. Beer and black bread serve for supper if any is eaten.

Meat costs from 25 to 50 cents a pound, and other articles of food are about the same prices as in the United States.

Constant strikes are necessary in order to force recognition of the unions and the conditions under which they suffer. Last year there were 175 strikes involving 85,000 workers. The most important were among the textile, metal and brick workers. These were successful in raising wages and obtaining better conditions. The trades already organized are perfecting their federations and reaching out to the unorganized crafts. There is a general movement for a reduction of hours and increase of wages. The unions are striving to accumulate a strike fund to tide them over future conflicts.

In so brief a sketch I can only faintly outline the intensity of the struggle in Austria. I believe that much of its history is still to be written; yet the intelligence and courageous attitude of the Austrians will doubtless compel for them the economic freedom they so richly deserve. EVA McDONALD-VALESH.

Go to Work on a Farm.

The following from the Washington Star reads like sensible advice, until one asks, What will the farmer, who cannot get enough for his products to pay the expenses of raising them, say to the proposition? However, The Star's advice, if acted upon, may broaden the knowledge of the workingman as to the true condition of the country.

"In all the great cities of this country are many thousands of unemployed men—men who have practical knowledge of various trades, and who, until the coming of this miserable era of hard times, had been accustomed to earn sufficient money with which to support themselves and their families. There is nothing upon which to base present hope of speedy employment for these men in the trades with which they are familiar, but it does not necessarily follow that these unfortunately idle men shall continue to be idle until our manufacturing industries now slumbering are reawakened by the coming of new legislative or commercial conditions. In every agricultural region in the United States there is room for many of these unemployed. In some places the farmers find it practically impossible to secure the assistance they need to make successful crops. It is understood, of course, that agriculture is not universally popular as an avocation, but the man who is out of work and who is sincere in his desire to meet with an opportunity to earn a living ought not to be overparticular. Any industry is honorable, no matter how humble it may seem to be. It may be argued that farm labor is not attractive; that the hours are long, and the life somewhat monotonous. If there was plenty for everybody to do, there would be no impropriety in a man's insisting upon his unquestioned right to work when and where he pleases, but in such times as these real men will not be too choice. They will take up farming until something more nearly to their tastes turns up; then they can return to their old trades, better off in matters physical and moral for their agricultural experience."

McLean and Labor.

During the Democratic convention, when it was thought John R. McLean might be nominated for vice president, stories were circulated alleging that Mr. McLean was in bad odor with the typographical union. To correct any wrong impression which may have gone abroad at that time, the following is reproduced from a card published over the signature of Alexander Duguid, president of Cincinnati Typographical union, No. 3:

"Statements having reached me that erroneous reports had been sent out to the country concerning the relations of Cincinnati Typographical union, No. 3, and Mr. John R. McLean, I desire to say that Mr. McLean has always employed union labor, has always paid the very best wages, more than the scale in every department of the composing room, and his employees are also allowed more privileges than those of any newspaper in the country. In fact The Enquirer has since his ownership been known among the printers the country over as the best paper to work upon. He is the best friend Cincinnati Typographical union, No. 3, ever had. He has never employed any but union labor or expressed any but the kindliest sentiments toward organized labor. His relations with the union are entirely harmonious."

STRONG LANGUAGE.

Mgr. Thorpe's Sermon Over the Cleveland Murdered Union Man Causes Trouble.

Mgr. Thorpe, who preached the sermon at the funeral of William Rettger, who was killed by a nonunion man during a demonstration near the works of the Brown Hoisting and Conveying works, at Cleveland, caused great displeasure among the friends of the deceased because of the opposition to the union evident in his remarks. The following communication was sent to Mgr. Thorpe and given to the Cleveland papers:

Rev. T. P. Thorpe:

DEAR SIR—Without mincing words, and in language quite as plain as we can command, we wish to inform you that we consider your sermon upon the occasion of our brother's funeral an insult to the intelligence of every union man in the city. In the brief time occupied you displayed more ignorance of the labor question than it has ever before been our lot to hear. Had Mr. Brown preached the sermon it could have been no more favorable to his cause nor more prejudicial to us. Your tender solicitude for the scabs and their suffering families has indeed moved our hearts. Your advice to us to go back as individuals was entirely uncalled for, and since this is the vital point in the controversy your taking a stand against us was, to say the least, very bad taste.

In one breath you say we have a right to band together and in the next you advise us to go to Mr. Brown as individuals. You claim that the men in labor organizations don't do their own thinking, and the inference that the scabs do, and that they have more independence and manhood, is too ridiculous to be made the subject of a controversy. If you will stand on the street and look at some of those manly Case school students, about whose wives and children you are so solicitous, you may possibly be induced to devote some time to the study of this burning question, about which you profess to know so much and in reality about which you know so little.

"American labor is the most dignified on earth." How nice it sounds! We might expect such an utterance from you, who so gladly follow in the footsteps of McKinley, the hypocrite, and Mark Hanna, the labor crusher. Of course you are opposed to the preaching of the men who "come from the slums of Europe, where men are not men." Who is responsible for these slums? What have your church and the other churches done to remove the slums? You have preached to these poor victims of the sweatshop and factory, "Be content with your lot." All this time you have managed to live in ease and comfort and revel in the high sounding title of monsignore. How many titles did the Carpenter of Nazareth have? Your proposition to give some corporation lawyers a fat snap in a tribunal of arbitration at $10,000 a year is too absurd for comment. Like your other statements, it indicates how little you know about and how much you have to learn on this vital question.

In conclusion we would suggest that you call on the Browns and accept congratulations, since we learn that your effort is very acceptable to them and the other labor crushers.

Yours truly,

Executive Committee Locked Out Employees Brown Hoisting and Conveying Machine Company.

Cotton Mills Shut Down.

Twelve mill corporations, operating 858,025 spindles and employing 8,020 operatives, who earn about $50,000 weekly, are idle today, says a Fall River dispatch of July 6, and this is the first real experience with a shut down of the mills that before Labor day will have cost the city about $1,000,000.

The business depression which has resulted in the agreement of 69 out of 81 mills to shut down for four weeks will cost the city a sum that cannot be accurately placed. If, as it now seems likely, 5 out of the 12 mills that are not in the agreement find it necessary to come in, the loss in wages and consequent loss to general business will come much nearer and may exceed the amount above stated.

The United States is a consumer of the product of the local mills, and since orders for print cloths have failed to come in from the west for the usual amounts since the business unrest there have been piled upon the local market 1,718,000 pieces of print cloths, nearly two months' production of the local mills. With the surplus has come the lowest market price ever offered for prints, 2 7-16, and it is therefore necessary, since cloth cannot be made for that figure, to shut down the mills and clear away the surplus in order to create a demand and get prices which will permit a profit for moving goods.

Co-operative Cigar Making.

The latest co-operative enterprise here is for the manufacture of cigars. It is named the Detroit Cigar Makers' Co-operative association, limited, and is composed of 32 members, all practical cigar makers and engaged in the factory. Each member contributed $50 to the capital stock and at the same time contracted to work six weeks without drawing pay. Their rules seem to be conservative and such as should insure success. No member can have more than one share, and that share cannot be hypothecated or sold or transferred. It has to come into the hands of the association. This is intended to keep the control in their own hands. The possession of a share does not save a member from being discharged if he fails to render proper service.—Detroit News.

President Gompers states that the A. F. of L. has increased over 25 per cent in membership in the past four months, while there has been an increase of over 60 per cent in its financial income in that time.

Testing Discipline.

Discipline in the ranks of the United Brotherhood of Tailors is a subject of pride with the leaders. Meyer Schoenfeld related today that not long ago, just to test the obedience of his followers, he picked out at random 15 shops to which he sent unexpected orders to strike. No explanation was offered and none was demanded by the men. Without a murmur they obeyed the command.—New York Post.

YOUNG CRIMINAL

Willis Has Confessed to Many Crimes.

INCLUDING THE MURDER OF FRED STRANGE.

He Treats His Arrest With Coolness.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 10.—A remarkable story of wrong doing, involving larceny, burglary, highway robbery, several attempts to commit murder, and finally murder itself, was told by a 19-year-old prisoner, in the Taunton police station yesterday. Herbert Willis, the son of a business man, who was arrested Saturday, on a charge of murdering Fred M. Strange, June 22, confessed to Chief of Police Cash and two others that he fired the fatal shot, besides being responsible for a score of criminal offenses, which have kept the police of two states on the move for the past two months.

Willis was arrested on account of his strong resemblance to the man who shot Strange. He admitted yesterday that he was the only one involved in the exciting episode at Providence a few days ago, when a supposed bicycle thief escaped on a stolen machine, after having jumped through a window, went riding away amid a shower of bullets from those who attempted to capture him. The murder of Strange was surrounded with the greatest mystery. He was held up about 9 o'clock at night at White's Four Corners, on the outskirts of this city. The man pointed a pistol at Strange and demanded money, but Strange protested strongly, and in a brief struggle he was shot, and died from his injuries a few days later. The highwayman escaped on a bicycle. Richard Marley, a farm hand, was arrested, charged with the crime, last month, but was acquitted.

When young Willis was arrested Saturday at a fish market owned by his father, he drew two revolvers on the police, but was prevented from using them. He fought desperately, and almost bit off an officer's thumb before he surrendered. A large quantity of firearms, ammunition and two sets of false whiskers were found in his room after the arrest.

He admitted yesterday that he had held up several people at night, and that he had broken into stores, both in Rhode Island and this part of Massachusetts. He denied, however, that he was the man who held up three men in Pierce's grocery store in Raynham.

Willis is very bright, and talked about his thefts and escapades in the coolest possible manner. Four bicycles have been recovered by the police, one is the Bristol wheel, another the one taken from Pawtucket avenue, Providence, on which he escaped from the city, and another is the one taken from a store in North Dighton. A cartload of goods was found in a cave off Walker street by Deputy Chief Cash and Officer McCormack and brought to the station. In the load were two bicycles, a lot of canned goods, cigars, confectionery, boots and shoes and other goods, such as are kept in a country store.

Through a Weak Fence.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 10.—Just before sunset last night, 24 boys made a break for freedom from the yard at the state industrial school. The inmates of the school had supper at about 5:30, and then the boys were allowed to go out in the yard. There was only one keeper in charge of the boys, J. A. Williams. The fence which surrounds the playground is not of a very strong character, being intended more as a boundary to limit the area over which the boys may roam, than as a barrier. A little after 6 o'clock Mr. Williams was startled by a sound of breaking of wood on one side of the yard, and saw the boys break through the fence and rush for the woods behind the buildings. The alarm was given, and Superintendent Ray and his men started in pursuit of the runaways. The search was kept up through the night, and eight have been captured.

Triple Lynching In Louisiana.

Hahnville, La., Aug. 10.—There was a triple lynching in this town just before 12 o'clock Saturday night, and yesterday morning the bodies of three Italian murderers were found swinging from the rafters of a shed near the courthouse. One of the men is Lorenzo Saladino, who assassinated Jules Gueymard at Freetown last Tuesday night, and the two others were Decino Sorcoro and Angelo Marcuso, who murdered an old Spaniard on the Ashton plantation, near Bouttes station, some time ago.

Wheeled a Mile In 1:03.

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after three preliminary trials, E. E. Anderson wheeled a mile in 1:03 over a plank path. He was paced by a locomotive pulling a coach, and rode a wheel geared to 92. Anderson could have bettered this time a few seconds, but he mistook the signals and slowed up a little too soon. The trial took place near Oldenburg, Ills.

Terrible Slaughter of Christians.

Athens, Aug. 10.—At Anapolis Pediada, near Heraklion, in the Island of Crete, on Saturday, 1000 armed Mussulmans butchered 30 unarmed Christians in the precinct of the St. John monastery. Several priests and women and children were among the victims. One woman was slaughtered after seeing her children and her husband butchered on her knees. Several churches were desecrated, and a priest named Jeremia had his ears and nose severed from his head, and was then burned alive on a pyre of sacred pictures.

Too Bad.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10.—The observation of the sun's total eclipse, visible in northern Europe, northern Asia and Japan, and for which elaborate preparations had been made, has proved a failure, both at Vadso, on the west coast of Nova Zembla and at St. Petersburg, owing to the clouds. Sir Robert Ball of Cambridge conducted the observations at Vadso.

Military Matters.

Capt. Ed. Carr of the Putnam Guards, sixth regiment, in talking to Jimmy Doyle of the Hogans, stated that no company of the militia and few private organizations will have a better rifle range than the Lowell companies when the work on the building in Dracut is completed.

At the Forrest street range, Danvers, Saturday, there was a shoot between Co. C of Lowell, and Co. N of Danvers, which was won by the Spindle City team by a score of 434 to 417. The total of the Lowell team is the largest they have ever made.

Purgatorial Pills.

The druggist would hardly smile if you asked for "purgatorial pills." There are many of them. But he would probably recommend a pill that did not gripe; a sugar-coated pill, gentle in action, and sure in effect. What are they called?

TERRIBLE HEAT

Large Cities Suffer Much From It.

DEATH FROM PROSTRATION ON ALL SIDES.

The List Numbers Over 125 Cases.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The report of fatality, resulting from the heat in various sections of the country yesterday, indicate that the present hot spell will be as disastrous in its effect as a national calamity or plague. The death roll of the day exceeds 125 in the principal cities. In Greater New York, including New York, city, Brooklyn and Staten Island, the number of deaths from heat reaches 50. In Baltimore the deaths were 19, and in Philadelphia 18. Eastern cities appear to have suffered most severely, although the death list in the west continues to be high. The reports cover only the principal cities, and all the fatalities will doubtless swell the list very materially. Following is the death list, so far as reported from the various cities: New York and vicinity, 50; Philadelphia, 18; Washington, 6; Baltimore, 19; Bayonne, N. J., 2; Newark, N. J., 3; Albany, 2; Jersey City, 1; Pittsburg, 1; Chicago, 6; Rochester, 1; Louisville, 1; Memphis, 1; Cleveland, 2; Cincinnati, 5; San Antonio, 1.

Uncle Sam's Silver Not Wanted.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—The Standard bank has given notice that hereafter American $1 bills or silver certificates will be discounted at the rate of 10 per cent. The other city banks will adopt the Standard's methods. The regulations will be a great inconvenience in Toronto, especially where there is a large amount of United States money. Other parts of Canada will also suffer.

Joe Patchen's Great Work.

Medford, Mass., Aug. 10.—Two new world's records for half-mile tracks were made Saturday at Combination park. One at the trot, the other at the pace. Joe Patchen, 2:04, holder of half-mile track records at 2:08, placed the mark at 2:05¼. Cephas, 2:11¼, equalled his own record and made a new record for half-mile tracks at the diagonal gait.

A Generous Gift.

Trenton, Aug. 10.—Daniel Morris of Atlantic City has presented $45,000 to Bishop McFaul of this diocese, for the purpose of erecting an orphan asylum and industrial school for boys. The plans have been drawn and the contract awarded. The asylum and school is to be at Hopewell, 12 miles from Trenton, on a farm of 180 acres.

Williams' Club Meeting.

There will be an important meeting of the Williams' Democratic club in Jackson hall at 7.30 o'clock this evening.

Veteran Firemen's Muster.

The New Bedford league muster committee has received a communication from the proprietors of the Evening Standard that they will offer as a special prize a solid silver cup, for the association making the best display in the parade Aug. 19, the number of men and the appearance of engine to be considered.

The Lowell vets will have to get a hustle on and bring that cup to the Spindle City. Jim Eddy Hill and "Old Mose" must look their prettiest on that occasion.

A Large Mortuary Record.

An unusual number of old residents have passed away this summer. Among the oldest were: Ellen Doyle 100, Susan Gallagher 98, Daniel Hart 94, Diana M. Eaton 82, Catherine Ivers 77, Esther Galler 85, Emeline S. Beckwith 79, Laurent Robillard 93, Martha M. Grover 78, Miriam C. Fisk 86, Catherine Carroll 80, Martha Mulligan 75, Jeremiah L. Shorey 87, Almira L. Libby 81, Fanny Hoyle 82, Nancy Robbins Saunders 75, Mary Mongovan 80, Henry Burrows 79, Philena E. Moxley 84, Helen Allard 80, Thomas Leland 78, Dorcas Howe 85, Catherine Carroll 80, O. J. Belle Isle 82.

In the past two months there have been more deaths in Lowell of children five years of age and under than have been caused by epidemics, which taxed the energy of boards of health to suppress. It is not generally known that 206 children have passed away in two months. Most of the deaths have been caused by cholera infantum.

HIS CONVICTIONS

Determine the Course of W. P. Burbank.

EX-POSTMASTER WILL VOTE FOR BRYAN.

A Sound Statement of His Reasons.

When a life-long and old-line republican like ex-Postmaster Willis P. Burbank severs his connection with his party and declares himself for Bryan and free silver in a logical statement to the public, other sensible republicans are set to thinking upon the merits of the democratic platform as opposed to that of the gold bugs of Wall street.

Ex-Postmaster Burbank, in an interview with the Boston Globe correspondent, states his reasons as follows:

"I believe the present gold standard to be absolutely unjust and dishonest to this country, and responsible in a large degree for the industrial depression which has prevailed, and which, for the past two or three years, has rested on the people with a force which has amounted to a paralysis of all business enterprise.

"I am not in public life, and have no desire to parade my views before the public, but this is not a new question with me. My friends are aware that I have entertained these views for some time. The development in the financial affairs of the government of the past year, and fuller information on the subject, have only served to intensify my convictions. I see no reason why I should hesitate to express them."

"Will you explain why you think the gold standard unjust?"

"I will try to make it plain in a few words if possible. The money of the world, by custom and by law, has been gold and silver from time immemorial. By custom first, and by law for its better regulation to meet the demands of modern civilization. Early in the history of the country, on the recommendation of Hamilton and Jefferson, by law, both were made legal tender at the ratio which custom had decreed from the use of foreign coin, and the mints were opened to the free coinage of both gold and silver.

"In 1803 the mints of France were opened to free coinage, and with other nations which both used and coined silver and gold at a ratio of 15 or 16 to 1, established the money value of both metals. The amount of gold and silver in sight constituted the real money of the world. The amount of either metal in sight varied greatly from time to time. For a long period the production of silver was three times as large as that of gold. Later conditions changed, and for some time the production of gold was three times as large as that of silver. But both by custom were used as money, and by law were legal tender at that ratio. The debtor at all times had the choice of coins, and the creditor received payment in an honest dollar and was not dissatisfied.

"These were the conditions existing in 1873. It is important to know what the supply of money of both metals was at that time, and the proportion of each. The gold and silver in use as money in the world was equal to $5 per capita. This amount was equally divided between the two metals; that is, $2.50 in gold and $2.50 in silver. This was the basis of all credit substitutes for money and served to measure the wealth of the world.

"Now by operation of law, commencing in this country in 1873, and ending with India in 1895, the mints of the world were closed to silver, and its legal tender value restricted. What has been the result? Isn't it plain that $2.50 in gold is performing the work formerly done by $5 in gold and silver, and even more, as the trade and commerce of the world have grown, and isn't it plain that the increased demand for gold has enhanced its value and thus raised the standard? By custom we still use silver, but by law it has no value and stands as credit or token money not in a different position from paper money.

"It is denied by gold standard advocates that gold has increased in value. I will refer those who doubt it to Sauerbeck's table, which is indorsed by the English royal statistical society and by the leading scholars of the world. This table shows that while silver has fallen 7 points from a standard made up of a variety of leading products gold has risen 40 points in the same period. Nobody but a New England editor disputes these figures today, and some of them dispute facts at random and call it argument."

"I am for protection. For the same reason I am for silver, but I differ with my Republican brothers, who claim that a sufficient degree of protection will restore prosperity with the present financial system. It is not a question of revenue, but of gold and gold exports.

"From 1889 to 1893 our exports of gold were net $214,700,000, and this under the McKinley bill. Yet it is claimed that to go back to that bill will stop gold exports. Our great production of gold is urged. This is all a myth. With all the energy put into its production, new methods and all, the increase is slight; a total production of $45,000,000 in this country, about what is used in the arts.

"What would be the effect of free coinage on the industries of New England?"

"That is what I want to talk about. It is certain that we cannot have bi-metallism by international agreement at present. Three conferences have been held within 15 years, and at each English representatives have said, no. Why, was answered by Mr. Gladstone on the floor of parliament at the time the last commission was appointed, I think in 1892, when he said, that England as the creditor country of the world derived great benefit from the appreciation of the gold standard, and used illustrations to prove it.

"This country is justified in taking a positive stand for the protection of its own interests, just as England has done. When we get ready to act I expect to see France, Germany, Italy and many of the smaller countries unite with us, and all the silver countries will certainly do so. This would establish the parity of the two metals at 16 to 1 without friction. If it cannot be done, and this country goes to a silver basis, then will come the great advantage to our mills and operatives.

The difference between the two standards, ours being the lowest, will act as the strongest kind of protection, and the importation of foreign goods will be restricted. Besides, India, China, Mexico and other countries which buy manufactured goods use silver, and will buy of us in preference to any country with a gold standard. Our mills, which have been practically shut, will again export largely. Prosperity will come back to us, and it will be England next time which will ask for international agreement."

"Will not this change bring ruin on the country before it is accomplished?"

"Decidedly no, unless the people most interested not to have a panic bring one about."

"You are aware that the opinions you have expressed are not in accord with the policy of the Republican party?"

"I am, but like thousands of Republicans, I claim that the indorsement of the gold standard at St. Louis was not Republicanism, as indeed it was not Democracy. It was Clevelandism, pure and simple. Both parties in national convention, and their leaders, are on record against it. When President Cleveland entered into a secret agreement with the combination of foreign bankers, to buy gold at 6 per cent. premium, and asked Congress for authority to issue bonds, payable in gold, he struck the key note of a new political issue, the perpetuation of the gold standard.

"The Republican party, false to its traditions, indorsed it at St. Louis. The Democratic party, true to its traditions, rejected it at Chicago. That the delegates at St. Louis did not appreciate the serious responsibility resting upon them was shown when they sang 'Goodby, my lover, goodby,' as the western delegates left the hall, and the party was disrupted, with the west against the east. It will be intersting to read the comments of history on this convention."

"Shall you support the Republican or Democratic candidate?"

"In the one case I am in favor of the candidate, and opposed to the platform. In the other, I am in favor of both candidate and platform. There seems to be but one course for me to pursue, and be honest with myself. To break the political affiliations of a lifetime is not a pleasant thing to contemplate, and friendships with me have been very dear, but I must be honest with my convictions. I expect to vote for Bryan and Sewall."

"What have you to say as to the probability of election of either candidate?"

"Not a word. I have not given it consideration. No one can form an opinion at this early day."

BRYAN IN CHICAGO, ILL.

CANDIDATE RECEIVED THOUSANDS OF DEMOCRATS.

Mrs. Bryan Also Held Reception—A Day of Handshaking for Both—Party Proceeds East Today.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Thousands of enthusiastic free silver Democrats called at the Clifton House to see W. J. Bryan and his wife yesterday. They came with their wives and babies and children. But it was late in the afternoon before their desires were satisfied. In the first place, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan slept until the middle of the forenoon. When they had breakfasted they drove to the Presbyterian church at Englewood and listened to an orthodox sermon, preached by Rev. Dr. John C. Hill. While there were thousands of eager Democrats calling at the Clifton House to see their national candidate, they were disappointed. After returning to the hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan took dinner and then took an afternoon nap, which lasted until near 6 o'clock in the evening. After that they went to the parlors and held an informal reception. The throng then began to pour in. The Democratic nominee and his wife were kept very busy shaking hands, kissing babies and children until near the time for their departure. They left on the 11:30 train over the Pennsylvania for the east. They will arrive at Pittsburg tonight. As yet they have made no definite plans as to what route they will take from there to New York.

THE INDUSTRIAL WORLD.

Matters of Interest From Lowell's Many Industries.

According to information gathered by the Commercial Bulletin's special representative for this city, the Lowell mills will not only run through the summer on orders, but are better off than most manufacturing cities.

Among the industries not apparently affected by the hard times might be mentioned the Kitson Machine company, which is running on full time. The company is shipping pickers and openers to the Tucapau cotton mills, Wellford, S. C., and also to the Alabama Cordage Co., at Montgomery, Ala.

Josiah Gates & Sons, manufacturers of oak-tanned leather belting, lace leather, worsted aprons and manufacturers supplies, are kept busy supplying orders, although it is well known that trade is slack most everywhere.

Otis Allen & Son, who operate the most complete kyanizing plant for the preservation of lumber, capacity of tanks, 150,000 feet, are well engaged in filling orders.

Jeremiah Clark, dealer in cotton and woolen machinery, is busy. He has recently received at his storehouse a lot of textile and other machinery which he offers at very low prices. Mr. Clark has the largest lot in store to be found in this country. Storehouses are with over two acres of flooorage.

FORESTER'S GALA DAY

Arrangements Completed for Next Saturday's Great Event

At Forester's hall, yestarday a meeting was held by the Forester's Gala Day committee to make arrangements annual event to be held at the Fair grounds on Saturday afternoon next. The route and other matters were discussed informally Chief Marshal O'Hearn met many of his assistants after the committee meeting and planned about the arrangement of the various divisions and if everything is carried out as arranged the celebration will be the best ever held in Lowell by the Foresters and that is saying a great deal.

The sports include a base ball game between the Unions and South Ends, a tug of war, two mile novice bicycle race (unsanctioned), three standing jumps, hop, step and jump, shoe and barrell race for for boys, 150 yards for members and ladie's bicycle race.

All local courts are making elaborate preparations to participate in the parade which is to be held prior to the sports at the Fair grounds, and it is expected that fully 2000 men will be in line. Four bands have been engaged for the parade which will form in the vicinity of the North common, moving at 1.30 sharp. The route will be from Castle square, to Salem, to Pawtucket, to Merrimac, to Central, to Gorham and thence to the Fair grounds. The marshals of the various courts will be their chief rangers, as follows:

Court Merrimack, Edward Young; Court Middlesex, Edward McGann; Court City of Lowell, Eugene Sullivan; Court Gen. Shields, John Dolan; Court Wamesit, John E. Maguire; Court Gen. Butler, John Gateley; Court Columbus, M. H. McHugh.

Mortality of Lowell

The death rate for the week ending August 8, 1896, 36.3 against 29.5 and 34 for previous two weeks.

The infectious diseases reported for the week ending August 8, 1896: Typhoid fever, 2; measles, 6.

Chelmsford's New School.

At the Centre town hall, Chelmsford, Saturday afternoon, a meeting was held, the town voting to appropriate $12,000 for additional school accommodations in the Centre village.

DROWNED IN MERRIMACK

EDWARD MULLARKEY MEETS DEATH WHILE BATHING.

Unable to Swim Yet He Went Beyond His Depth—Narrow Escape of a Small Boy.

Edward J. Mullarkey, aged 23 years, while bathing in the rear of Gage's ice house in the Merrimack river off Lakeview avenue, yesterday morning, ventured beyond his depth, and being unable to swim was drowned. The body was subsequently recovered and removed to Undertaker O'Donnell's establishment.

The deceased was 23 years of age and was employed as travelling salesman for O'Brien Bros., for Portland, Me. He was home for a week's vacation with his family consisting of a mother, one brother and three sisters. He also leaves a host of friends and acquaintances in this and other cities who will deeply mourn his loss. The funeral will take place from his residence, 19 Riverside ave., Centralville, on Tuesday morning with services at St. Michael's church.

Thomas Riley, four years old, residing at 362 Lawrence street, while sitting on the river bank fell into the Concord river yesterday afternoon and was sinking for the third time when he was rescued. His thigh, however, was fractured and the ambulance conveyed him to St. John's hospital.

KEEPS IT HANDY

Lowell People are Classing Them Among the Necessities.

"Handy to have in the house," is an old expression, and relates to those things that emergency demands. Our good old grandmothers always kept a full stock of them, and that is where the old saying came from. Tried and true remedies soon become a part of the household dispensary, and this is right. In those olden days kidney troubles meant send for the doctor. Today, Doan's Kidney Pills in the house are the safeguards against backaches, urinary derangement, pains in the kidneys and all the miseries they bring. They are the sure cure for any stage of kidney complaint and a very important feature with them is that they do not affect any healthy condition of any part of the system. They are simply kidney remedies and do their work. Ladies, far more than men, appreciate such remedies. The constant going up and down stairs and ordinary bending and stooping necessary in house work tells on the kidneys, and having something sure to dispel the complaint "handy" is the right thing to do. Mrs. Charles Slowey, 641 Market street, tells us her complaint began with backache, then soreness across the kidneys, followed by urinary trouble. Going up and down stairs was painful. The urine was scant and pained in passage. Indigestion added its weight, and she was thoroughly depressed. She says: "I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and got them at Ellingwood & Co's, Merrimack and Central streets, and I want to say now I have no more pains or urinary trouble. Going up and down stairs doesn't bother me, and the urine is natural. Doan's Kidney Pills did it, and I now have a box in the house that we all take on the first intimation of any more backache."

IT WAS DECIDEDLY HOT

THERMOMETERS WENT OVER THE 90 MARK.

Thousands Wore Wilted Collars and Cussed Long and Deep—There Was No Air to Be Found in Lowell.

Warm weather? Was it? Go ask the sweet tempered and good natured telephone girls, who while on the constant alert answering calls were almost tempted to use "cuss" words, even if it was the sabbath.

The weather proved a bonanza for the laundry men, however, and good ironers will be in demand for the next few days. Starched collars and cuffs are hard to find today, unless in the furnishing goods store or with some individual that was fortunate enough to have a good supply on hand. Bart Ryan, the vigilant police officer in Skin 'em square, who kept tabs on the mercury felt like one who had stolen a march on the weather bureau for he looked cool and comfortable with his "celluloids" while every one about him had their neck linen protected with handkerchiefs while huge drops of perspiration trickled down upon them. It is a well known fact that for several days the mercury hovered around the 90 mark and exclamations were heard on every side of "Hot! Hot!" but yesterday's weather for heat capped the climax. George Mevis' thermometer on The Sun building registered 94 and remained so for a long period. At 8.30 p. m. it was 88 and about an hour after went down to 84 and at 11 o'clock, according to Office Ryan's "tabs" registered 82.

The street railroad did an immense business but the beaches and Lakeview were also hot.

BICYCLE NEWS.

T. J. Greeley of this city won a prize at the Wakefield races Saturday.

The Spindle City Wheelmen visited the Winnisimet club of Chelsea yesterday.

EMERALDS AGAIN

North Common Wonders Defeat Florences

IN A MAGNIFICENTLY PLAYED GAME.

Over 2500 People Sweltered and Cheered.

Emeralds 5, Florence 3. Such was the result of the hottest game and the best played one that the league has seen this season.

There were over 2500 people present and notwithstanding the severity of the heat which must certainly have affected many they cheered their favorites and had a good time generally.

There was great speculation previous to the game as to its result but there was little Florence money when the time came to bet. Odds were offered 5 to 3 on the North common boys but there were few takers.

There was one unfortunate feature about the game and it was the presence of Umpire Lynch on the field. Mr. Lynch is a good umpire and an honest one but objection was raised to him from the fact that he belongs at the Emerald end of the city and is a "chum" of many of the players. The Florence people were decidedly opposed to him while the Emeralds were not particular about having him. So it was expected that this decision would cause trouble. To make matters worse he made three bad decisions, one on judgement of a foul ball, another in declaring a base runner safe when he was out and a third for allowing Donovan first base after he had run out of the line. As all three favored the Emeralds, the Florence people went wild and some of the team acted more like school boys than professional ball players. Regan and Ryan were the most sensible men in the team, and their playing can be judged by the score. The Florence team had an alleged concher with them who they should leave in Dracut when they play ball, for he did more harm than good for his team.

After the game Manager Day made a protest but it didn't go and the Emeralds got the money.

In the very first inning, Kane of the Emeralds made a running catch that would do credit to a national leaguer, and from that out the game was replete with magnificent plays and a few bad errors.

It was a pitcher's battle throughout and some of the hits credited were not clean, but still were such as to be scored as hits.

Everyone played with a snap that was astonishing, and it is safe to say that such playing, if continued, will give base ball such a boom as it never received before in Lowell.

Ryan played the best game of any, though there were many right after him. Garrigan, Muzzey and Donovan were like three stone walls by which nothing could pass, while Dan Murphy and "Gun" Regan played in a manner worth going miles to see. The score:

CATHOLIC NOTES.

The Xaverian Brothers of St. Patrick's school have returned from their annual retreat at St. John's college, Danvers, Mass. At the retreat were members of the order from Lawrence, East Boston, Cambridge, and other cities to the number of 50. The convention of brothers of the order will be held at St. Mary's seminary at Baltimore.

Very Rev. Fr. Guillard, O. M. I., and Rev. Fr. Tortel, O. M. I., of this city, are pleasantly passing a few weeks at the beautiful home of the Gray Nuns on Lafayette street, Salem. The convent is finely located on one of the best streets in Salem, and in the rear of the building is a large garden which overlooks the water. Rev. Fr. Tortel though quite feeble is able to perform the duties of his calling and says mass every morning, while Fr. Guillard is in excellent health.

Rev. Fr. Dacey, O. M. I., is attending to the pastoral duties of St. John's parish, North Chelmsford, during the absence of Rev. Fr. Shaw and some of his Lowell friends attended mass at his church yesterday. Among them were Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Walker. Concone's mass was sung during which Mrs. Walker assisted the choir in her usual artistic manner.

Lincoln Square Notes.

Clerk Levi Steeves of the Lincoln square drug store, is to spend his vacation at "Maplewood Farm," New Boston, N. H.

City workmen have moved the urinal at the Lincoln square. It was for a long time an "eye sore" and nuisance.

The bank wall at the Abraham Lincoln school is under way.

Agent Drury would do well to make the driver of horses in a well-known Chelmsford street wood yard be more careful in his treatment of his animals when bringing them to the Lincoln square trough to drink. After horses do a decidedly hard day's work on the "tread mill" for cutting the wood, or in trucking about the city, the animals are then ridden bareback to said trough. After barely tasting the water the horses are driven at breakneck speed back to the stable. The lives of pedestrians are endangered by such driving.

A halt should be called. Another class of horse owners should be seen to, and they are the Jewish peddlers of Chelmsford street from Howard street to Lincoln square. Not only on week days but on Sundays horses have been sent to the Lincoln square trough without a halter or driver. A few days ago a couple of elderly ladies were nearly run over by an unharnessed horse turned out to go to the watering trough.

TAX RATE $15

Announcement Made by the Assessors Today.

THE LOWEST RATE IN MANY YEARS.

Inevitable Result of Democratic Covernment.

Under a democratic mayor the tax rate of the city of Lowell for the year of 1896 is lower than in many years.

The assessors announced this morning that the tax rate for this year will be $15 per $1000 which is remarkably low and the result of a democratic government.

It is needless to state that real estate owners are made happy by the announcement.

The rates for 6 years have been as follows: 1891, $15.60; 1892, $16.80; 1893, $16.40; 1894, $17.40; 1895, $18; 1896, $15.

The total valuation of the city is now $69,901,947, against $63,738,042, an increase of $1,119,905 over 1895.

The total appropriations for the present year call for an outlay on the part of the city of $1,069,502.46.

This total of $1,069,502.46, minus the tax on polls of $49,624 (24,812 polls at $2 apiece), gives $1,019,878.46, which is the amount that must be raised by taxation and which, divided by the city's valuation, $69,901,047, gives the bottom rate of $14.59. Under the statue law 5 per cent. is allowed for an overlay to provide for shrinkages. Five per cent. of $1,019,878.46 would be $50,993.92 3-10, which would be the outside. A rate of $15 it was ascertained by the assessors would give an overlay of $28,650.74 and that being deemed sufficient at a meeting of the board this morning that rate was fixed.

This is the lowest tax rate since 1879.

FUNERALS.

CAMPBELL—The funeral of Edward Campbell took place from his late residence, 175 Church street, Saturday afternoon. Rev. George S. Sinclair was the officiating clergyman. The interment was in the Edson cemetery and the pall bearers were Messrs. Abraham Thompson, John P. Elliott, Andrew Devine and John N. Gilson.

MELVIN—The funeral of Sarah J. Melvin occurred yesterday afternoon from her late home, 41 Marion street. Services were conducted by Rev. R. A. Greene, pastor of Grace Universalist church. Interment was in No. 2 burial ground Gorham street. The pall bearers were Messrs. William K. Aldrich, Phillip G. Cote, Horace Kittredge and Charles Melvin.

DADMAN—The funeral of Miss Isabella Dadman took place this afternoon from her late home in Chelmsford Centre, services being conducted by Rev. Granville Pierce, pastor of the Unitarian church, that village. The deceased was the daughter of Nathan P., and Martha A. Dadman, and died on Friday last at the age of 51 years. Her disease was neuralgia of the brain. She had been seriously ill about a week and her suffering was so great that it was necessary for the last three or four days of her life to keep her under the influence of opiates. Her nearest surviving relatives are a sister, Miss Martha E. Dadman, who resided with her in Chelmsford, and Girard P. Dadman, city clerk of Lowell. She also leaves an aunt, Mrs. Julia Axtell, a member of the household, and another aunt, Mrs. Elvira Dickinson, a resident of the town.

COX—The funeral of Margaret, infant daughter of Fred and Kate Cox, took place yesterday afternoon from the home of her parents, 25 Rogers street. The burial was in the Edson cemetery.

JUDKINS—The funeral of Miss Annie C. Judkins took place yesterday afternoon from her late home, 22 West Bowers street. Services were conducted by Rev. George F. Kenngott. Burial was in the Lowell cemetery. The deceased was the daughter of Charles H. Judkins and was a prominent member of the John Street Congregational church, and was always an active worker in the young peoples society of the church.

LEMAITRE—The obsequies of the late Dr. J. M. Lemaitre took place this forenoon from St. Joseph's church and were very largely attended. A solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. A. Amyot, O.M.I.; deacon, Rev. A. Marion, O. M. I.; sub-deacon, Rev. J. B. Frigon, O. M. I. The choir rendered the harmonized requiem and the interment was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Timothy Vigeant, O. Bourbonniere, John Vincent, Dr. J. A. Gagnon, Hilaire Dozois and Emery Gill. Dr. Lemaitre died on Friday at 282 Salem street at the age of 78 years. He is survived by a wife, several sons and daughters.

RYAN—The funeral of the late Bridget Ryan took place yesterday afternoon from St. John's hospital. Interment was in the Catholic cemetery.

GILBRIDE—The funeral of Alice Gilbride who died in Portsmouth, N. H., Saturday took place yesterday afternoon from the Middlesex street depot on the arrival of the train. There were many beautiful floral tributes and among the large number in attendance were Rev. J. J. Delaney of Portsmouth, formerly of Lowell, a relative of the deceased. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery.

SCULLY—Mary Scully, aged 41 years, died yesterday at 9 Jefferson street. The funeral took place this forenoon from St. Patrick's church where a requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. D. J. Gleason. The interment was in the Catholic cemetery and the pall bearers were John Lavery, James Duffy, John Graham, Miles Neeson, Michael Duffy, Robert McMullen.

A RUNAWAY TROLLEY CAR

KILLED SEVEN AND INJURED FIFTY-NINE PASSENGERS.

While Going Down a Hill the Brake Gave Way Sending the Car and 90 Passengers Over an Embankment Into a Creek.

Lancaster, Penn., Aug. 10.—A runaway car on the Columbia and Donegal railroad caused the deaths of seven and injuries of 59 passengers last night.

The car was returning from Chickisis Park to Columbia when the rigging broke the car going down a steep hill with 90 passengers on board. At the foot of the hill the car overturned going down an embankment into a creek. It was some time before the bodies were recovered.

THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONS

Will be Present at St. Patrick's Gala Event Event—Wefers Now in Training For the Occasion—Greeks Will Race.

Great preparations are being made for the grand gala event at the Fair grounds on Saturday, Aug. 29, under the auspices of St. Patrick's parish. Entries for the 100 yards, local race, are being made with C. A. Daly, druggist, Suffolk street, where those who desire to compete can obtain entry blanks. Bernard Wefers has sent word to Rev. Richard S. Burke that he will endeavor to break the world's record as he will return in good condition from his training quarters at Travers island. He is desirous of having the honor of the world's record go to Lowell where he has many dear friends and well wishers. His recent feats in this city were performed when he was out of condition and as the season will soon be at an end, and as Wefers is to return to his college studies he desires to establish a new record. Burke, the celebrated quarter of a mile runner, has also written Father Burke that he will try to make a new record and so will Fitzpatrick, Delaney and Wright, the crack one-mile runners. A new feature of Lowell out-door-meets will be the great running race between Greek residents of this city. What promises to prove interesting to lovers of horse flesh is the running races, best two out of three, half-mile heats, between horses not over 14 1-2 hands high. The entries are "Horse," W. S. Leighton; "Kid," Gardiner W. Pearson; unknown name, P. A. Nickerson. Postmaster Gardiner W. Pearson will have charge of the athletic events, which in itself is sufficient evidence that everything will be conducted satisfactorily.

DEATHS.

WILLIAMS—Elizabeth J. Williams, wife of Gilbert P., died this morning at 277 Summer street.

LAHIFF—Patrick Lahiff, aged 25 years, died last evening at his late home on Fayette street. He is survived by two sisters.

CARNEY—John Carney, aged 1 year and 9 months, died yesterday afternoon at 9 Coulon's court.

BOWERS—Annie, daughter of William and Mary Bowers, died yesterday afternoon at 311 Lakeview avenue. Funeral this afternoon.

SULLIVAN—Nora Sullivan, daughter of Timothy and Margaret Sullivan, died yesterday afternoon at 343 Broadway.

NORTH CHELMSFORD.

The Young Unions of this place defeated the Young South Ends of Lowell Saturday afternoon in a well-played game by a score of 14 to 12. The game was exciting until the last man was out. Ripley and Troll were the battery for the Young Unions. The game was a good one for young teams.

Mr. Patrick S. Ward, the well-known tea man, had his team badly broken last Friday night. He left the outfit standing close by his stable, when his horse started breaking the team.

Mr. Edward Fox spent Saturday enjoying the salt water breezes at Lynn.

Yesterday the electric cars were packed on this line, all passengers wending their way to the Crystal lake grove, where a band concert was given by McElroy's orchestra of Lowell.

Miss Lizzie Nelligan of East Cambridge is spending her vacation at the home of her cousin, Miss Nellie Ward.

Rev. John J. Dacey of the Immaculate Conception church, Lowell, celebrated mass in St. John's church, yesterday, and delivered an eloquent sermon on the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin. On Saturday, the feast day of the assumption, mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock.

Last night the power of the electric cars was very weak at times and several cars were delayed.

Dracut's Postmaster.

A petition has been sent to Washington asking that Charles L. Hodge be retained as postmaster of Dracut. The petition is signed by selectmen and leading taxpayers. Both democrats and republicans have signed the petition.

Will Hear Bryan.

A VERY SERIOUS CHARGE

LAWRENCE MOTHER ARRESTED FOR INFANTICIDE.

She was Caught in the Act of Burying the Baby in a Cellar—Autopsy will be Held.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 10. — Lenora Veksvewska, a Pole, 21 years of age, and unmarried, was arrested yesterday on the charge of killing her newly born babe. It appears that she gave birth to the infant Saturday noon, and Jacob Brackenwak, a lodger in the house, on going into the cellar Saturday night discovered her in the act of burying the child. He took the child away from the mother, and upon finding it dead sent for an undertaker. The latter notified the medical examiner, who, after making the autopsy, ordered the arrest of the woman, but refused to make known the result of his labors.

SOME CITY HALL MATTERS

SCHOOL JANITORS RESUMED WORK THIS MORNING.

City Treasurer Serves Notice on Delinquent Taxpayers, One of Them Being Placed on the Mechanics Hall Building—Tomorrow's Ball Game Is Being Discussed.

The superintendent of public building started the school janitors preparing and cleaning the school buildings preparatory for the school opening this morning, and by the first of September everything will be in readiness for the pupils. There have been extensive repairs on a number of the school buildings and the janitors will find plenty to do from now until the opening of the schools. All the janitors have been re-engaged.

The notices served by City Treasurer Coburn for delinquent taxes are out, and some eight pieces of property are offered for sale. Five owners have settled with the treasurer. Among the notices is one tacked on to the Middlesex Mechanics Building.

The all-absorbing topic among the councilmen is the great base ball match which will take place tomorrow afternoon at Mountain Rock between the Boston and Lowell councilmen. Word has been received by City Messenger Cahill that sixty of the councilmen and their friends from Boston will arrive in Lowell on a special train at 1.38, and will be met at the depot where special electrics will take the party to Lakeview, where the battle of a lifetime will be fought on the ball ground at Mountain Rock.

Assistant City Clerk Billy McCarty in speaking of the game says that he will wager most any money that there will be more passed balls than at any game played this year. But he intends to assist the Lowell councilmen as a back stop.

LOCAL NOTES.

The number of new streets laid around Lowell during the summer is greater than all the new streets named for five years previous.

Lowell lodge of Odd Fellows and Evening Star Rebekah lodge will have an excursion to Nantasket beach on Wednesday next.

The William B. Spalding building, now in the process of erection on Prescott street, will be five stories high and the front of buff brick.

There is a noticeable increase in the attendance at the First Baptist and Kirk street Congregational churches since the new pastors have entered upon their labors.

The alarm from box 5 shortly before one o'clock yesterday afternoon was for a blaze in an unoccupied tenement on Rock street where tramps had been accustomed to sleep. Damage slight.

An open-air Spiritualist meeting was held yesterday afternoon in a grove on Chelmsford street beyond the city line. These services are to be held every Sunday afternoon during the warm weather. Pews have been placed in position for the benefit of those wishing to attend.

IN HALE'S BROOK

Was Found the Body of a Woman.

THE UNFORTUNATE WAS MRS. BRIDGET WALL.

Death Supposed to Have Been Accidental.

The body of a woman who is said to be Bridget Wall 23 Carpet lane was taken from Hale's brook early yesterday morning. She was about 45 years of age and when found no money or anything else in her clothing showed indentification except a card bearing the words, "Campbell, employment office, Boston." A man named Underwood heard the cries of a woman for assistance coming from the direction of Hale's brook. He ran to that locality, and with the assistance of railroad men took the body from the water.

At Congress street it is reported that the unknown might be Rebecca Eaton, who formerly resided in that street. Mrs. Eaton's son-in-law visited the undertaker's rooms, but he said it was not Mrs. Eaton.

People who were near Hale's brook soon after the body was found say they saw indications of a struggle on the bank. It is also said that there were bruises on the woman's body. These circumstances were reported to the medical examiner, but they were not deemed sufficient by him to cause him to order an inquest. The body was identified this forenoon. The deceased is survived by a husband and two children.

Police Court—Pickman, J.

In police court before Judge Pickman this forenoon, 22 drunks appeared, of which number four were arrested Sunday, four were continued drunks and the remainder were arrested Saturday or early this morning.

The majority received fines ranging from $1 to $5, but John McGann for his imbibing received a sentence of four months in jail and for the larceny of a chicken from the Union market received an additional sentence of two months. John Carney and James Martin, both illegally keeping liquor, were each fined $50. Frederick Lambert and Napoleon Renaud for the larceny of clothing from a building were each sentenced eight months to jail. Daniel Gray charged with keeping open a barber shop on the Lord's day, was continued until to-morrow morning to hear the evidence of the man who was shaved, but who was not present in court at the hour of trial.

The Goldbug Conspiracy.

The demonetization of silver is a progressive process. It began in secrecy and has been pursued by devious paths ever since. At the beginning no one dared to make the proposal that the Republican platform of 1896 contains. Emboldened by success, the conspirators are pushing on to bolder plans. Both silver coin and greenbacks are legal tender today. The first point of attack is the greenback. It is proposed to retire them and the treasury notes, thus still further contracting the currency, lowering prices and advancing the value of bonds. When the greenbacks are retired, there will come the final stroke of all—namely, the entire and absolute disuse of silver as a money metal and the deprivation of legal tender quality from the silver coin in existence. We shall then have reached the absolute gold standard. Gold alone will be money. Everything will be payable in gold, no matter when the debt was contracted. Prices will shrink in an unheard of manner. Every debtor will be destroyed financially, and the holders of the world's debts will own the earth and the fullness thereof.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The gold monometallists tell us bimetallism is anarchy, repudiation and several other bad things, but that it would be a good thing if the leading nations of the world would consent. But if it is all that is bad for one nation to proclaim it, how can the other leading nations make it "holy and righteous?"

A GRAND OVATION

Tendered W. J. Bryan In All Towns

THROUGH WICH HE PASSED TO NEW YORK.

Hon. Arthur Sewall Is In Boston.

Morrisonville, Ind., Aug. 10.—William J. Bryan left Chicago at midnight for New York on the Pennsylvania railroad, and his trip was one continuous ovation.

The first demonstration was at South Chicago and other suburban stations, where large crowds assembled at the depot and cheered lustily as the train passed.

The hour had no effect on them and it is quite probable that thousands remained up all night to meet the train. At Columbia City 500 people assembled and Mr. Bryan shook hands all around.

When the train arrived at Fort Wayne at 5.20 this morning there were 2500 people on the platform, all of whom cheered wildly as Mr. Bryan appeared on the platform. He made no speech, however.

At Valparaiso and many other stations similar demonstrations occured.

Sewall in Boston.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Hon. Arthur Sewall, vice-presidential candidate, arrived here this morning on the steamer Kennebec on his way to meet Bryan in New York. He breakfasted at Young's and tonight will leave for New York.

WILLIS WAS ARRAIGNED.

He Waived Examination and Was Held Without Bail for Grand Jury.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 10.—Fred Willis, the self-confessed murderer of Fred Strange, was arraigned in the district court today on the charge of murder.

He waived an examination and was held without bail for the November term of the grand jury.

Over 3000 people gathered on the street near the court, and many hissed him as he passed. He took no notice of the crowd.

MORE DEATHS TODAY.

Intense Heat Still Continues With Disastrous Results.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 10.—The weather continues unbearable and today three deaths and two prostrations are reported.

New York, Aug. 10.—The sky is overcast today and the relief from the intense heat is but slight. Seven deaths and many prostrations are reported.

Drowned in a Squall.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—Five persons were drowned in the Delaware river last night while rowing. Their boat capsized during a squall and went to the bottom.

Tennyson's Widow Dead.

London, Aug. 10.—Baroness Tennyson, widow of the late Poet Laureate Tennyson, is dead. She married Lord Tennyson in 1850.

Mr. Moran states that Bryan will sweep the country and that McKinley will not only get the biggest surprise of his life, but will receive his Waterloo.

A False Statement Nailed.

It is a common statement that silver is now legal tender to any amount. This is not true. The Bland-Allison act of 1878, that restored to silver its legal tender quality, had a proviso, "except where otherwise provided in the contract." This gave the creditor the option as to which money he would receive when he could dictate the terms in which a note or bond was payable. Since then these creditors have tied up the people, municipalities and corporations in billions of dollars of notes, bonds and mortgages, both new and refunded, payable in gold. The act of 1873 demonetized silver for us, and the act of 1878 drove a knife through the corpse of bimetallism. It authorized contracts that destroyed the vital principle in bimetallism.—W. H. Harvey.

Member of the Associated Press

FOR PRESIDENT,

WILLIAM J. BRYAN of Nebraska

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

ARTHUR SEWALL of Maine

Contrary to the predictions of the Boston Herald the Maine democrats endorsed the Chicago platform and candidates without a ripple. The gold men, if there were any, kept quiet.

The Maine democrats intend to arouse the silver sentiment that lies dormant in that state. They will attempt to carry Maine for Bryan, and with Bryan's assistance may succeed.

The republicans have organized the Lawton guards and revived the Blaine and Logan club. We may expect to see before the campaign is over the Varnum troop and Poore gerrymander dragoons.

The republicans are showing considerable activity in preparing for an aggressive campaign. The republicans may fight with all the vigor at their command, but their candidate will be defeated in November.

It is now understood that the plant of the defunct Boston Standard will be utilized for the publication of a free silver paper by the editor of the New York Journal. This will be another case in which evil will result in good.

The horse deal committee expects to embarass Mayor Courtney and the city messenger by the investigation of the repairs on the boiler. They will only expose the honesty and circumspection of the mayor and his assistant in this transaction.

It should be remembered by the voters of this city that the biennial elections must be defeated at the polls in November. It will be submitted for the decision of the people, and as it is not for the people's interest, they should all vote solidly against it.

The Boston Herald devotes nearly a column of space daily to decrying Hon. Geo. Fred Williams. It is paid for so doing by the gold bugs, but not all their gold paid out for mud slinging will turn the people against him. He will be the next nominee for governor.

Bryan's trip eastward is one continous ovation. Seldom, if ever, in the history of this country has any candidate been tendered such a popular reception everywhere he went. His speeches have been cheered to the echo all along the line. But this popular applause will dwindle into insignificance compared with his reception at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday. The Sun will have a representative at that demonstration and will give the entire speech with the description of the enthusiasm and the incidents of the meeting at the earliest moment.

GOLD DEMOCRATS.

The gold democrats of some states are anxious to put up a ticket representing their views, and in opposition to the regular democratic ticket. In that extremity the gold men would expose their weakness and would then constitute the bolters or those who oppose the rule of the majority.

Should they place a ticket in the field the insignificant vote received would expose their weakness before the country. They call the silver men pirates and anarchists, but the men who revolt against the rule of the majority are far more anarchistic than are the men who stand by the majority.

Anarchists want to tear down the fabric of government supported by the majority, and with them, in this respect, must be classed the bolters who refuse to recognize majority rule, either in party, state or in union.

The republicans of the city, it seems, have not even a semblence of a political conscience, since after effecting such an outrageous deal in the gerrymander of the city, they now intend to rob the democracy of their representation in the legislature. It is true that the democrats in the Massachusetts legislature cannot exert an influence upon legislation, but nevertheless the people want the representation in that body that belongs to them. Chairman Poore seems to outrival any of his predecessors in planning a good political steal. In fact, if he keeps on, he will be the equal of W. H. H. Hayes or Daniel Varnum. If he succeeds in effecting the proposed steal of the representative districts, we may expect to find some public square laid out for a park in his honor to bear his name after the manner of Varnum park. The republicans have it entirely in their power to rob the democrats of representation in the legislature, and if the county commission is willing to be a party to the outrage, we shall soon see gerrymander number two carried out with the unblushing effrontery with which the people were robbed of their rights in the common council, school board and overseers of the poor in the redistricting of the city.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

RETURNS TO FREE TRADE.

New South Wales Has Had Enough of the Protection Policy.

The ministry just returned to power in New South Wales has determined to inaugurate a more complete free trade policy, as a result of the emphatic and specific demand of the electors. In a report made by Vice Commercial Agent Keightley at Newcastle, it is declared that the government went into office on a free trade issue and has set about redeeming its pledges to the people.

In connection with the removal of protective duties an income tax measure has been introduced, with an exemption on incomes below $973, and a land tax, with an exemption on values below $1,168. These features of the free trade programme have been unfavorably received by the wealthy, as was to be expected. But even the wealthy will find that the general reduction in the prices of the necessaries of life will compensate for the call thus made on their pockets for the support of the government.

The fact that New South Wales has returned to a liberal policy is one more evidence of the evils of protection. If there is one country which could offer something approaching a reasonable excuse for protection it is New South Wales, which is yet in its infancy socially, politically and commercially.

But the people have learned, as a hard practical fact, the folly of the cheap dinner cheap man theory which furnished the landed gentry of England with their solo argument against the repeal of the corn laws, arguments which are heard with painful repetition in the United States today. They have learned that any taxation beyond that necessary for the support of government is a direct violation of the elementary principles of liberty. The sooner this country learns it the sooner will it witness its greatest measure of prosperity.—St. Louis Republic.

ENGLAND'S PROSPERITY.

Free Trade Vindicated by the Largest Surplus In Her History.

Says England's chancellor of the exchequer in presenting the annual budget statement: "The year has been one of unexampled prosperity. Not only is the surplus the largest ever known in the history of the country—a state of affairs which would be in itself highly auspicious—but, what is of far greater significance, the revenue collected and the expenditures made exceed in amount those of any preceding year. This indicates the highest kind of prosperity, since it shows that the country is gaining in productive power."

Next fall the high protection stumpers will be warning their beloved fellow citizens against free trade England. Yet Great Britain, beleaguered by all the protective powers of the earth, and having no protection of her own with which to defend herself, shows up a year's account of prosperity that is the envy of many nations.

It will be incumbent upon the extremist in protective matters to explain this showing next fall. None of the Republican journals if now attempting to account for it.

The fact is that Great Britain has been diligently cutting ice and finding a market for it.—Boston Globe.

TELLER AND HIS LIKE.

Men Who In a Great Crisis Stood Forth as Patriots and Not as Partisans.

Henry M. Teller has won for himself a place in history. In a great crisis he stood forth as a patriot. It is no easy matter to sever the political ties of a lifetime; it is no easy matter to stand before a hostile and angry crowd and preach a gospel which they reject, but Senator Teller had the courage to do it. Some shouted "renegade," some called him a "bolter," and hundreds hissed their venom at him, but the voice of his conscience rose above the din of the multitude, drowning out all other sounds, and that conscience called him "patriot." He was present at the birth of the Republican party, he espoused the cause for which it stood and brought to its support all the energy of a strong and vigorous mind, all the zeal of a warm and generous heart. Years ago he noted with apprehension the growing influence of the capitalistic classes in the party's councils, but his love for the party was so deep that his hope overcame his fears. But when the convention at St. Louis bowed to the will of Wall street and under the threat of a withdrawal of campaign contributions accepted a platform written by the money changers, he was left no choice, and abandonment of the party became a duty.

Issues make parties. The money question is now the paramount issue, and voters must make their party associations fit their convictions. The example of Senator Teller is taken for the sake of illustration. He is conspicuous because of his great ability and high official position, and yet all who imitate him are deserving of like praise. Dubois, Cannon, Hartman and all the others who followed Teller out of the convention have practiced the same virtues and given evidence of the same moral courage.

Congressman Towne, who, though not a delegate, was present and participated in all their plans, is worthy to stand by the side of Teller. His state conventions, both Democratic and Republican, declared for gold, and yet his convictions and so deep that he is willing to stand by them, even though it may mean political death to him.

Disintegration has begun, and it can have but one result. The west and south, the great wealth producing sections of the country, will dominate the government and restore equality in legislation.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE MEXICAN PROGRAMME.

The Country Is Prosperous and Has No Use For the Gold Standard.

The newspapers of North America which advocate gold monometallism assert that the prosperity of Mexico is due entirely to the fact that its currency is "inflated"—that is to say, that it is given a supposed value which in reality it has not, and that it has brought into existence an activity which is anything but normal and on a solid foundation. It is not at all surprising to us that on the eve of a presidential election, which perhaps may be decided in favor of the free coinage of silver and against the gold monometallism, that the "sound money" press of that country should endeavor to deceive the American public with regard to the condition of affairs in Mexico.

It is to their interest to make the people believe that Mexico has no foreign market for its "depreciated silver dollar." These assertions are preposterous. Our circulating medium fulfills all the needs of the nation. It supplies the demand created by reason of the activity in our commercial and agricultural affairs. Our bankers are not issuing any more than the usual amount of bonds, which are based upon silver. The mints are not coining dollars in an unusually large quantity. China and Japan are buying these silver dollars in such quantities as to avoid the superabundance of silver in Mexico. Therefore how can it be said then that our circulating medium is defective, whether it be silver or silver certificates?

The reason why Mexico is improving is because the appreciation of gold constitutes a premium upon all Mexico's exports and protects its national industries, thus making it more difficult for foreign manufacturers to compete with our home industries. This fact has awakened the slumbering energy of our people and is also attracting foreign capital to share the large profits which our growing industries afford.

It is true that in order to insure the interests of our debts payable in gold we need more silver dollars than before. However, this is counterbalanced by the increase in the government's revenue. Foreign capital in developing the country has increased the government's revenue, capital invested by men who know that investments in Mexico are safe and profitable.

Our progress is slow, but steady. Therefore not even the most cautious of our bankers is alarmed at the condition of our affairs, and it does not afford any opportunity for ruinous speculations. However, lands prosper for the cultivation of sugar cane, coffee and tobacco and have increased somewhat in value, but the increase has been steady and solid. And it is due to the fact that a large number of capitalists from the republic of the north are investing their money in these industries. These are not the proper symptoms of "inflated" currency, therefore such currency does not exist, and the American press has no occasion to censure us and should look elsewhere for weapons with which to defend its gold standard doctrine, as it will be unable to find them here, for the present at least. This country is very well pleased with its silver currency, with which it pays its debts and continues to advance in spite of the misrepresentation of the American orators and newspapers. It is not our desire that the United States should adopt the free coinage of silver. Our national programme would be seriously obstructed should it do so. We only wish that our neighbors should leave us alone to enjoy in peace the advantages of our silver currency, and that intelligent and enterprising men should continue to come and invest their capital in this country and help in the aggrandizement of our nation.

The Carlisles and the Morgans may do as they please and continue to worship the golden calf as long as they please. Mexico does not need their advice nor ask for their sympathy.—Translated From the Mexican Financier by A. J. Ortiz For Denver News.

Kissing Corners.

In the dark piazza corner
Sways a hammock through the night,
And within its tangling meshes
Lies a maiden—"out of sight!"

Sheltered in the same snug corner,
Where the light is none too clear,
Gently swinging this fair maiden,
Sits a man, in chair drawn near.

From the west the silvery crescent
Throws soft kisses to the trees,
And they murmur back a message,
Lightly stirring in the breeze.

Hushed are all the world's rude noises
In the stillness of the night;
Nature sleeps, her beauties gleaming
In the moon's caressing light.

Not a sound her rest disturbing,
Save the maiden's soft "I won't!"
Which is followed in a moment,
By the same voice murmuring, "Don't!"

Ever thus it is in corners
When the maiden says "I won't!"
For he does, by some queer reasoning,
Every time she murmurs, "Don't!"

POPULISTS QUIT

Will Make No More Concessions,

BUT WILL STAND BY CANDIDATE WATSON.

Candidate Bateman Talks Loudly.

Portland, Me., Aug. 10.—A special to The Sunday Telegram from Lewiston contains an interview with the Populist candidate for governor, L. C. Bateman. In answer to the question, what will be the result of Bryan's refusal to accept Tom Watson as a running mate, Mr. Bateman said:

"Provision was made for that emergency at the St. Louis convention. We shall simply pull Bryan down and substitute the name of Colonel Norton, who was the candidate of the "Middle-of-the-Road" men, and who polled nearly 400 votes. We have gone just as far as we shall ever go in the direction of concession. The Populists will not accept Sewall as a candidate, and neither threats nor bribes will serve them a hair's breadth from this determination. The St. Louis convention settled that fact. The feeling against Sewall was simply overwhelming. In the first place he is not a logical candidate for a movement of this nature. To make a platform denouncing national banks and then nominate a national bank vice president to stand on it is an act of perfidy and folly, of which the Democratic party alone could be guilty. Because the Democrats committed this folly it is no sign that we should be equally willing to make asses of ourselves. It would be on the same principle as the Prohibitionists nominating a saloon keeper who just recovered from an attack of the delirium tremens; or the devil being called to sprinkle holy water. The Democrats in their greed to grab everything in sight simply got their foot into it. We shall not follow suit. We have nominated brave Tom Watson. He is an ideal and logical candidate. If the Democrats want our 2,000,000 votes they must pull Sewall out and take our man. That is our ultimatum. We shall not budge an inch from this position. They can do this act of justice or take the consequences. The People's party organization must be preserved at all hazards. We have but little faith that we shall get free coinage even if the Democrats win. We certainly shall not get it unless we are here to watch them.

"When we see such spoilsmen as Gorman, Dave Hill and Tammany Hall swinging into line for Bryan, it is not calculated to give us Populists much confidence. Here in Maine the Democrats are claiming to be for free coinage, and yet every one of their candidates for congress are gold men, and if elected will vote for the single gold standard. It is this hyprocrisy that creates universal distrust. The gold men, one by one, are swinging into line for Bryan. They will secure just as many congressmen of their stripe as possible. These men will then unite with the Republicans to block all silver legislation.

"That is the game that is to be sprung upon the country. It is the old, old story of hypocrisy and deceit. All history shows that no reform was ever brought about by an old party. It cannot be done. We are willing to help elect Bryan, but it will only demonstrate anew that no good can come out of Nazareth.

"We are not willing to give up our organization, however, in order to do this. The very fact that the Democrats want us to disband before accepting our aid shows their lack of sincerity. We shall not accommodate them, however gratifying it might be to their vanity. We shall stand by Tom Watson, to a man, in every state, except one or two that are under control of fusionists. We believe that Watson will be equally true to us, and not resign, however tempting a bribe may be offered him. It is fortunate that we have such a leader in this crisis. A weak man would be tempted to betray us. These are the times that try men's souls, and glorious Tom Watson will prevent the disruption and destruction of our party. Time will show that we shall get no reform from the Democratic party, no matter how fair their promises. Then the organized and compact People's party will forge to the front.

"Here in Maine we are going to make a vigorous fight, and we shall gain heavily. The Democrats have put up a man for governor who was a gold standard man six weeks ago, but who, like Saul of Tarsus, saw a new light after the Chicago convention open up the vision of the Portland custom house. As I have before stated all their nominees for congress are gold men. Without even a blush of shame they play the role of hypocrites. They are doomed to the most terrible defeat, for the sense of decency is not yet dead in the human heart. The same old gang of pie-counter politicians are leading them. They would flop back to gold again tomorrow if it would bring them the offices any quicker. The People's party is the only party in this state that represents the free coinage idea from principle. We expect to have the aid of Tom Watson and Senator Butler during the campaign. The people are with us, and we have no fear of the result. We have fought this gang of pie-counter paupers for 20 years, and we shall continue to fight them to the end. They are in this thing for revenue only, while the Populists are in it from principle. May God pity Bryan and his cause if his supporters in other states are governed by the same motives as are his supporters in Maine."

SMITH TO RESIGN.

Cannot Stand Cleveland's Opposition to Candidate Bryan.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The Star says that the retirement of Secretary Smith from the cabinet may be expected, and it assigns as the reason the fact that the secretary and the president are not in accord on the present political situation. Mr. Smith believes that notwithstanding the free silver platform adopted at Chicago, to which he continues, opposed Democrats should support the ticket while Mr. Cleveland, The Star states, is strongly and positively opposed to such a course, and believes effective measures should be taken to accomplish Bryan's defeat.

The Star adds: The retirement of Mr. Smith, whenever it comes, will be of his own motion, and because his sense of the fitness of things would not admit of his remaining in such close relations to the administration without being in entire harmony with Mr. Cleveland. The fact that their disagreement is merely one of political policy does not relieve the situation much, though it does make it impossible that there should be a personal rupture between them.

It is warrantable to say that the attitude of Mr. Cleveland toward the Bryan ticket is much more positive and aggressive than has been indicated by any of the many guesses that have been indulged in on the subject. There is nothing passive in his attitude. He is intent upon the accomplishment of Bryan's defeat, and it is said that he can be depended upon to do anything he thinks will best serve to that end.

A Bomb For Hanna.

New York, Aug. 10.—The McKinley league state executive committee has written a long letter to Mark Hanna, in which H. F. Gibbs, the Republican national committeeman for New York, and the regular organization of the Republican party in the city and state, is denounced. It reviews in detail the alleged wrong-doing of some of the Republican leaders, touches upon the methods adopted by the organization in the last state legislature, and accuses Mr. Gibbs and his associates of using their official positions to disrupt the Republican party in the county of New York, if not to prevent the election of the Republican ticket. The manifesto says: "We believe that in a majority of the districts the party is thoroughly and heartily desirous of the election of McKinley and Hobart, but in many places the machinery of the party is under the control of discredited and unscrupulous traitors."

Down to Hard Work.

Cleveland, Aug. 10.—Chairman Hanna left at midnight for Chicago to give his attention to the western campaign. He said yesterday that he understood that there was plenty of work awaiting him, he having received word to the effect that more than 1000 Republicans were waiting to see him to get the details of campaign work. Major Charles Dick, who is to have charge of the Chicago headquarters, starts for Chicago today, and the work of the campaign will be pushed from now on.

To Send Delegates to Indianapolis.

Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 10.—A call has been issued requesting the Gold Democrats of Vermont to meet in a mass convention at Bellows Falls, Aug. 18, to elect eight delegates to the national Democratic convention at Indianapolis, Sept. 2, and to nominate four presidential electors in support of the ticket nominated there.

Wreck of the St. Paul.

Monterey, Cal., Aug. 10.—The Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamer St. Paul went ashore at Point Pinos yesterday morning, and will probably be a total wreck. There were about 50 passengers on board, but all were landed safely, and no lives were lost. There was a dense fog at the time, and it is supposed the captain lost his bearings. The St. Paul ran between San Francisco and San Pedro, carrying freight and passengers, and was on her way up from San Pedro at the time of the wreck.

A Wonderful Invention.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Consul Germaine, in a report to the state department from Zurich, Switzerland, tells of a new invention made by the French Ship Engineer Bozin. It is called "Bozin's roller express," and it is claimed that by the device the movements of boats will be increased to about 62 miles an hour. This vessel will not slide, as in the case of ordinary ships, but rolls on the water by means of enormous hollow wheels or rollers. It consists of a large platform, supported by movable wheels or rollers.

Young, but Unhappy.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Hattie Simmons, 17 years old, a domestic living in the family of Wolff Levy, 34 Wall street, committed suicide last night by taking gas. She had been despondent for some weeks over some unknown cause. The girl was found on the bed, while attached to the gas jet was a long pipe, the end of which was in the mouth of the victim. The gas was turned on, and it is probable that death was painless.

Highwaymen Near Haverhill.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 10.—John Sullivan, while on his way home to Groveland, late Saturday night, was held up by three men on the outskirts of this city, and robbed of a gold watch and chain, besides $12 in cash. Sullivan fought the men desperately, but was overpowered after receiving numerous bruises. There is no clew to the highwaymen.

Officer Brought Him Down.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Three young South Boston toughts held up a man on Broadway at an early hour Sunday morning, and tried to rob him. A policeman, hearing the cries, ran to the assistance of the man, and the three toughs took to their heels. One of them, Daniel Kelley, was not as fleet-footed as the rest, and the officer kept him in sight. Kelley, however, refused to stop, and the officer fired a shot after him. The bullet hit Kelley in the back of the head, and he dropped. At the hospital the bullet was found beneath the skin of the head, and the injured man will probably recover.

Rebels Lost Heavily.

London, Aug. 10.—Earl Grey, the administrator of the British South Africa company, has telegraphed the government from Buluwayo that Colonel Alderson attacked, on Aug. 3, and carried at the point of the bayonet, Makonils kraal. He killed 200 rebels and captured a large quantity of cattle and sheep. Alderson had three of his force killed and several wounded. Earl Grey notifies the government that this victory completes the opening of the Salisbury and Umtali road.

Li Hung Chang Asks Many Questions.

HE APPEARS MUCH INTERESTED IN AMERICA.

Personal Characteristics of Chinese Diplomat.

London, Aug. 10.—By special appointment, a press representative was yesterday accorded an interview with Li Hung Chang, England's guest of honor this month. The correspondent was shown into Li Hung Chang's private parlor, in Lord Lonsdale's mansion in Carlton House terrace. A group of servants stood before the door through which the newsman was conducted by Viscount Li, the statesman's son, and who acts as his interpreter.

Li Hung Chang rose and bowed with formal courtesy as his visitor entered, and then shook hands, after which he motioned to a seat opposite to his own. Li was habited in an undress costume, consisting of a plum-colored stuff shirt, a dark blue silk jacket and a black satin cap, with a crimson silk button in the center of the crown, to designate his status as a mandarin. In the front of the cap-band was fixed a large pearl stud, set with diamonds. A diamond ring also glittered on the little finger of his right hand. His shoes were of black satin, trimmed with two lines of green silk, having thick, white felt soles. As the distinguished Oriental took his seat, following his guest's action, his attitude strikingly resembled the numerous published portraits from photographs, so that he would have been readily recognized without information as to his identity.

During the course of the interview, Li most of the time looked his interlocutor straight in the face, his piercing brown eyes suggesting the penetrative power of Roentgen rays. The complexion of the face is a dark bronze, relieved by a thin, strangling gray mustache and imperial. While talking his face becomes animated with an occasional smile, full of perception, accompanied by a gesture. He then relapses into the impassiveness of a bronze idol. His voice is low in pitch, but of sonorous quality, and he speaks with the strong inflections so characteristic of the Chinese tongue.

Li Hung Chang has submitted to interviews a number of times before his arrival in England, and has seized that rather formidable institution of western civilization with a firm grasp, to direct it rather than to be controlled by it. The method employed by the astute Oriental diplomat in his interviews with newspaper men is to ask and not to answer questions. The American representative found himself besought for information of the arrangements of the coming transit of Li through the United States before opportunity was given to put a query. Li was very eager regarding the program for his tour of the United States and the American arrangements. He asked if Philadelphia was much out of the way of the railroad route from New York to Washington. At this point the Chinese dignitary clapped his hands to call a servant in the Oriental fashion. The servant, clad in native garb, entered, bowed low and retired, and then returned with tea in a covered cup of exquisitely frail and delicate porcelain. While this was partaken of by his caller, Li Hung Chang asked about the special train on the Pennsylvania railroad, which is to be provided for him, and whether it would carry him direct to Vancouver without change. He was informed that probably it would.

Li explained that John Russell Young had written to him asking him to luncheon in Philadelphia, at which he promised that all Li Hung Chang's old friends should be present. Li first met Mr. Young when the latter accompanied General Grant on his tour around the world, and afterward when he became United States minister to China under President Arthur. Li asked if Mr. Young held such a position among Americans as to lead them to follow his arrangements. Being assured of this, he asked cordially after the health of Mr. Young and of General J. H. Wilson and Wharton Barker, whom he had seen in China.

The correspondent said that the greatest regret was felt among Americans that Li Hung Chang would be unable to see sufficient of the United States to obtain a knowledge of the country equally intimate with that obtained of the countries he has already seen. In reply he asserted that he deeply regretted that it was imperative that he should sail from Vancouver on Sept. 14, for which date passage has been engaged for him on the steamer Empress of China.

He was asked if he would like to eat some of the American delicacies, such as terrapin and canvas back ducks, which were likely to be offered to him at American dinners. Li replied to this query with an amused smile, saying: "I should be pleased to taste all such dainties, but I cannot promise to do so, as my teeth are no longer good. For this reason I prefer to confine my diet to Chinese meat."

Here Li Hung Chang called out to the servant in the adjoining room. The latter entered and took from a sideboard a long silver pipe, the bowl of which resembled a spirit lamp. He blew through the bowl, put a pinch of tobacco into it, lighted it with a taper, and then held the stem to the Chinese potentate's lips. Li pulled thrice, with much apparent gratification, which served to exhaust the charge, for the servant removed the pipe, blew out the ashes, refilled the bowl, relit it, and offered the stem to his superior. This was repeated three times before Li had sufficient of the fumes to satisfy his taste.

Following his smoke he asked as to the facilities and shipping of heavy baggage to Vancouver. Having satisfied him upon this point, the correspondent inquired whether Li desired to see the leading silverites and gold standard advocates regarding the question of money during his visit to the United States. Viscount Li replied to this that his father was anxious to learn all that was possible on the question, but his time was so short and he had so much to do while he was in Washington with people connected with the government, that he hoped that those persons wishing to have interviews with him would arrange for them with the Chinese minister at Washington. He would do his best to please everybody, but he desired to economize his time while in the United States as much as possible.

Here another caller was shown into the private parlor, and Li Hung Chang arose with bows and handshake, indicating that the interview was at an end.

Subsequent to this interview Viscount Li said that his father was more pleased with London than with any place he had seen. He was delighted, he said, with the enthusiasm manifested and the cheering of the English crowds. He wanted to know as to the chances for a smooth voyage across the Atlantic at this time of year, as his father, he said, was not a good sailor.

Regarding the opening of China by the building of railroads, Viscount Li said that they were anxious to have the Chinese do it themselves, but this would take some years, and a lot of money. Foreigners, he said, wanted security, but they could not give security without the consent of the government. His father was anxious to confer upon tariff questions while in Washington.

At 10 o'clock Li Hung Chang, in his full dress, drove off from his residence for a sitting for his potrait to a lady artist, a friend of Lady Salisbury, who introduced the artist to Li Hung Chang during the garden party at Hatfield House.

Razor Scared a Policeman.

Boston, Aug. 10.—A colored man named William Jackson was complained of yesterday by a woman who gave her name as Annie Williams, as threatening her life. A warrant was issued, and an officer started out to find Jackson. He met the colored man on Tremont street, but the latter pulled out a razor and defied the policeman. The officer fired two shots in the air with the hope of intimidating the man, but the latter closed in on him, and for a few minutes there was a lively fight between the two. Jackson, however, when the crowd began to gather, ran into a neighboring house, and going out the back way, escaped.

Attributed to Alcohol.

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 10.—Medical Examiner Hurd says, as to the autopsy on the body of Mrs. Eliza Crampney, who died suddenly at a house on Grape island, last Wednesday, that he is becoming of the opinion that there was no real cause for suspecting foul play, although the actions of Mr. Mather in abandoning the woman were singular. "The examination of the woman's internal organs," he said, "indicated that death was probably due to alcoholism, a nervous shock which she received by the fall at the hotel being a possible factor in the case."

Mute Testimony In Tragedy.

Halifax, Aug. 10.—An order has been given a carver of this place to make wooden figures representing the bodies of Captain and Mrs. Nash and Mate Blamberg. The Ericsson Badly Damaged.

New York, Aug. 10.—An accident which caused upwards of $100,000 damage occurred at the navy yard in Brooklyn Saturday night. The officers at the navy yard were extremely reticent when asked for an explanation of the trouble. As nearly as can be ascertained, a wave caused by a passing Sound steamer, which forced itself past the heavy caisson at the mouth of the dry dock, and capsized it, throwing it into the dock and allowing the water to rush in, was the cause of the mischief. The dock was nearly empty at the time, and the force of the water rushing in caused the moorings of the torpedo boat Ericsson to snap. The torpedo boat was hurled against the end of the dock, carrying away about 12 feet of the forward end of the boat. The Monitor, Puritan and Terror also broke their cables. These boats were not seriously injured, however.

LABOR HARD IN AUSTRIA

It is Trying to Struggle From a Horrible Condition.

Long Hours of Labor and Wages Are Depressingly Low—Yet the Workers Are Organizing and Are Fighting For Better Things—The Curse of "Stone Swallows."

The Austrian trades unions only began to organize about 1889, and one cannot repress a feeling of surprise that so much has been accomplished in a few years. Industry itself is in a curious state. The factory system is just beginning to replace hand labor, and there are all the conflicts which inevitably follow a great industrial change. There are still a large number of hand trades and many small proprietors, or masters, working in their own homes. In Austria one can still see the exquisite skill and artistic taste which often accompany hand labor. Trade guilds, with all their curious regulations, still survive, but they inure largely to the benefit of masters rather than workmen. The latter feel that the trades union is the organization suited to the present age. I found the Austrian workmen very intelligent and level headed. They are enthusiastic yet patient and determined.

Their hours of labor are excessive and the wages so low that it seems incredible that civilized people can exist upon them.

I will give a few examples of the wages paid and briefly sketch the mode of living, so that Americans may realize the task set before the Austrian trades union.

From 10 to 11 hours constitute the average workday, but it is often extended to 12 and even 15 hours.

Common or unskilled labor receives an average of 40 cents a day in Austria. Female hod carriers are paid 24 to 28 cents a day.

Machines have not yet been introduced in the printing trade, and it is considered the best paid in the country. Compositors receive from $5.20 to $6 a week; bricklayers from $3.60 to $3.84 a week; meerschaum workers from $2.80 to $4.80; goldsmiths $5.60; glassworkers from $4 to $2.40. A ladies' tailor doing the very finest work sometimes gets $7.20 a week.

Brewers work from 3 a. m. to 6 p. m., with only one hour's rest at noon. They are paid $3 a week. This trade is well organized and federated with kindred craft. It is preparing for a general eight hour strike next year.

Blacksmiths work 12 hours a day for $3 a week.

Ornamental iron workers toil from sunrise till sunset, sometimes even more than 12 hours daily. Their maximum wage for this highly skilled work scarcely reaches $6 a week.

Cigar makers are government employees and receive from $1.80 to $2 a week.

There is a great building boom in Vienna, Budapest, Prague and other leading cities of Austria, because the government exempts all new buildings from taxation for the first 20 years. The building trades do not even reap the advantage of plentiful employment. The buildings are all of stone or brick covered with a peculiar sort of plaster. A large proportion of the work is done by "stone swallows." From 16,000 to 20,000 come into the cities every year from their huts and fields in Bohemia and Moravia. They work for very low wages, from $2 to $4 a week. When the season is over, they go back to the country and live on potatoes and flour until the next spring. It is impossible to organize this class. They have lowered wages until the most skilled facade workers can only get $7.20 a week for really artistic carving.

Of the 700,000 working people in Vienna it is estimated that 60 per cent do not earn more than $2.40 a week throughout the year.

The textile workers in Bohemia average 80 cents a week and work 12 hours a day. In some districts agricultural laborers are paid from 7 to 20 cents a day.

Of course women must work as well as men or families could not exist. Women usually begin factory work at the age of 14. They continue after marriage. Sometimes the children are taken to the factory and sometimes left alone at home. The children grow up without care and a good standard of character cannot be expected.

A woman's wages will vary from 18 to 40 cents a day, rarely rising above that limit even where she performs skilled labor.

It might be supposed that living is very much cheaper in Austria than in America. It is not cheap enough to permit an approach to the standard of living in the United States.

Most Austrian wageworkers live in two small rooms, a bedroom and a kitchen. No matter how large their family, they can seldom afford more. They usually have city water and sewerage, for the houses are quite modern. The rent for the two rooms varies from $2.80 to $4 a month. There is an extra charge of 12 cents a month for water, and the janitor receives from 8 to 12 cents a month from each family for keeping the halls in order. The charges seem small, but the reader must compare them with the wages.

In the poorest quarters three or four families crowd into one large room to save rent.

Clothing is at least one-third cheaper in Austria than in the United States; so you often see the workmen and their families comfortably dressed.

Potatoes, dumplings, coarse sausages, vegetable soups, black bread and beer form the usual bill of fare. Much of the food is bought ready cooked, as in France. A working woman will often eat a piece of dry bread for breakfast, then go to a cheap restaurant near the factory and make her dinner from a small bowl of watery soup and a spoonful of boiled vegetables. Beer and black bread serve for supper if any is eaten.

Meat costs from 25 to 50 cents a pound, and other articles of food are about the same prices as in the United States.

Constant strikes are necessary in order to force recognition of the unions and the conditions under which they suffer. Last year there were 175 strikes involving 35,000 workers. The most important were among the textile, metal and brick workers. These were successful in raising wages and obtaining better conditions. The trades already organized are perfecting their federations and reaching out to the unorganized crafts. There is a general movement for a reduction of hours and increase of wages. The unions are striving to accumulate a strike fund to tide them over future conflicts.

In so brief a sketch I can only faintly outline the intensity of the struggle in Austria. I believe that much of its history is still to be written; yet the intelligence and courageous attitude of the Austrians will doubtless compel for them the economic freedom they so richly deserve.

EVA McDONALD-VALESH.

Go to Work on a Farm.

The following from the Washington Star reads like sensible advice, until one asks, What will the farmer, who cannot get enough for his products to pay the expenses of raising them, say to the proposition? However, The Star's advice, if acted upon, may broaden the knowledge of the workingman as to the true condition of the country.

"In all the great cities of this country are many thousands of unemployed men—men who have practical knowledge of various trades, and who, until the coming of this miserable era of hard times, had been accustomed to earn sufficient money with which to support themselves and their families. There is nothing upon which to base present hope of speedy employment for these men in the trades with which they are familiar, but it does not necessarily follow that these unfortunately idle men shall continue to be idle until our manufacturing industries now slumbering are reawakened by the coming of new legislative or commercial conditions. In every agricultural region in the United States there is room for many of these unemployed. In some places the farmers find it practically impossible to secure the assistance they need to make successful crops. It is understood, of course, that agriculture is not universally popular as an avocation, but the man who is out of work and who is sincere in his desire to meet with an opportunity to earn a living ought not to be overparticular. Any industry is honorable, no matter how humble it may seem to be. It may be argued that farm labor is not attractive; that the hours are long, and the life somewhat monotonous. If there was plenty for everybody to do, there would be no impropriety in a man's insisting upon his unquestioned right to work when and where he pleases, but in such times as these real men will not be too choice. They will take up farming until something more nearly to their tastes turns up; then they can return to their old trades, better off in matters physical and moral for their agricultural experience."

McLean and Labor.

During the Democratic convention, when it was thought John R. McLean might be nominated for vice president, stories were circulated alleging that Mr. McLean was in bad odor with the typographical union. To correct any wrong impression which may have gone abroad at that time, the following is reproduced from a card published over the signature of Alexander Duguid, president of Cincinnati Typographical union, No. 3:

"Statements having reached me that erroneous reports had been sent out to the country concerning the relations of Cincinnati Typographical union, No. 3, and Mr. John R. McLean, I desire to say that Mr. McLean has always employed union labor, has always paid the very best wages, more than the scale in every department of the composing room, and his employees are also allowed more privileges than those of any newspaper in the country. In fact The Enquirer has since his ownership been known among the printers the country over as the best paper to work upon. He is the best friend Cincinnati Typographical union, No. 3, ever had. He has never employed any but union labor or expressed any but the kindliest sentiments toward organized labor. His relations with the union are entirely harmonious."

STRONG LANGUAGE.

Mgr. Thorpe's Sermon Over the Cleveland Murdered Union Man Causes Trouble.

Mgr. Thorpe, who preached the sermon at the funeral of William Rettger, who was killed by a nonunion man during a demonstration near the works of the Brown Hoisting and Conveying works, at Cleveland, caused great displeasure among the friends of the deceased because of the opposition to the union evident in his remarks. The following communication was sent to Mgr. Thorpe and given to the Cleveland papers:

Rev. T. P. Thorpe:

DEAR SIR—Without mincing words, and in language quite as plain as we can command, we wish to inform you that we consider your sermon upon the occasion of our brother's funeral an insult to the intelligence of every union man in the city. In the brief time occupied you displayed more ignorance of the labor question than it has ever before been our lot to hear. Had Mr. Brown preached the sermon it could have been no more favorable to his cause nor more prejudicial to us. Your tender solicitude for the scabs and their suffering families has indeed moved our hearts. Your advice to us to go back as individuals was entirely uncalled for, and since this is the vital point in the controversy your taking a stand against us was, to say the least, very bad taste.

In one breath you say we have a right to band together and in the next you advise us to go to Mr. Brown as individuals. You claim that the men in labor organizations don't do their own thinking, and the inference that the scabs do, and that they have more independence and manhood, is too ridiculous to be made the subject of a controversy. If you will stand on the street and look at some of these manly Case school students, about whose wives and children you are so solicitous, you may possibly be induced to devote some time to the study of this burning question, about which you profess to know so much and in reality about which you know so little.

"American labor is the most dignified on earth." How nice it sounds! We might expect such an utterance from you, who so gladly follow in the footsteps of McKinley, the hypocrite, and Mark Hanna, the labor crusher. Of course you are opposed to the preaching of the men who "come from the slums of Europe, where men are not men." Who is responsible for these slums? What have your church and the other churches done to remove the slums? You have preached to these poor victims of the sweatshop and factory, "Be content with your lot." All this time you have managed to live in ease and comfort and revel in the high sounding title of monsignore. How many titles did the Carpenter of Nazareth have? Your proposition to give some corporation lawyers a fat snap in a tribunal of arbitration at $10,000 a year is too absurd for comment. Like your other statements, it indicates how little you know about and how much you have to learn on this vital question.

In conclusion we would suggest that you call on the Browns and accept congratulations, since we learn that your effort is very acceptable to them and the other labor crushers.

Yours truly,

Executive Committee Locked Out Employees Brown Hoisting and Conveying Machine Company.

Cotton Mills Shut Down.

Twelve mill corporations, operating 853,025 spindles and employing 8,020 operatives, who earn about $56,000 weekly, are idle today, says a Fall River dispatch of July 6, and this is the first real experience with a shut down of the mills that before Labor day will have cost the city about $1,000,000.

The business depression which has resulted in the agreement of 69 out of 81 mills to shut down for four weeks will cost the city a sum that cannot be accurately placed. If, as it now seems likely, 5 out of the 12 mills that are not in the agreement find it necessary to come in, the loss in wages and consequent loss to general business will come much nearer and may exceed the amount above stated.

The United States is a consumer of the product of the local mills, and since orders for print cloths have failed to come in from the west for the usual amounts since the business unrest there have been piled upon the local market 1,713,000 pieces of print cloths, nearly two months' production of the local mills. With the surplus has come the lowest market price ever offered for prints, 2 7-16, and it is therefore necessary, since cloth cannot be made for that figure, to shut down the mills and clear away the surplus in order to create a demand and get prices which will permit a profit for moving goods.

Co-operative Cigar Making.

The latest co-operative enterprise here is for the manufacture of cigars. It is named the Detroit Cigar Makers' Co-operative association, limited, and is composed of 52 members, all practical cigar makers and engaged in the factory. Each member contributed $50 to the capital stock and at the same time contracted to work six weeks without drawing pay. Their rules seem to be conservative and such as should insure success. No member can have more than one share, and that share cannot be hypothecated or sold or transferred. It has to come into the hands of the association. This is intended to keep the control in their own hands. The possession of a share does not save a member from being discharged if he fails to render proper service.—Detroit News.

Discipline in the ranks of the United Brotherhood of Tailors is a subject of pride with the leaders. YOUNG CRIMINAL

Willis Has Confessed to Many Crimes.

INCLUDING THE MURDER OF FRED STRANGE.

He Treats His Arrest With Coolness.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 10.—A remarkable story of wrong doing, involving larceny, burglary, highway robbery, several attempts to commit murder, and finally murder itself, was told by a 19-year-old prisoner, in the Taunton police station yesterday. Herbert Willis, the son of a business man, who was arrested Saturday, on a charge of murdering Fred M. Strange, June 22, confessed to Chief of Police Cash and two others that he fired the fatal shot, besides being responsible for a score of criminal offenses, which have kept the police of two states on the move for the past two months.

Willis was arrested on account of his strong resemblance to the men who shot Strange. He admitted yesterday that he was the only one involved in the exciting episode at Providence a few days ago, when a supposed bicycle thief escaped on a stolen machine, after having jumped through a window. went riding away amid a shower of bullets from those who attempted to capture him. The murder of Strange was surrounded with the greatest mystery. He was held up about 9 o'clock at night at White's Four Corners, on the outskirts of this city. The man pointed a pistol at Strange and demanded money, but Strange protested strongly, and in a brief struggle he was shot, and died from his injuries a few days later. The highwayman escaped on a bicycle. Richard Marley, a farm hand, was arrested, charged with the crime, last month, but was acquitted.

When young Willis was arrested Saturday at a fish market owned by his father, he drew two revolvers on the police, but was prevented from using them. He fought desperately, and almost bit off an officer's thumb before he surrendered. A large quantity of firearms, ammunition and two sets of false whiskers were found in his room after the arrest.

He admitted yesterday that he had held up several people at night, and that he had broken into stores, both in Rhode Island and this part of Massachusetts. He denied, however, that he was the man who held up three men in Pierce's grocery store in Raynham.

Willis is very bright, and talked about his thefts and escapades in the coolest possible manner. Four bicycles have been recovered by the police, one is the Bristol wheel, another the one taken from Pawtucket avenue, Providence, on which he escaped from the city, and another is the one taken from a store in North Dighton. A cartload of goods was found in a cave off Walker street by Deputy Chief Cash and Officer McCormack and brought to the station. In the load were two bicycles, a lot of canned goods, cigars, confectionery, boots and shoes and other goods, such as are kept in a country store.

Through a Weak Fence.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 10.—Just before sunset last night, 24 boys made a break for freedom from the yard at the state industrial school. The inmates of the school had supper at about 5:30, and then the boys were allowed to go out in the yard. There was only one keeper in charge of the boys, J. A. Williams. The fence which surrounds the playground is not of a very strong character, being intended more as a boundary to limit the area over which the boys may roam, than as a barrier. A little after 6 o'clock Mr. Williams was startled by a sound of breaking of wood on one side of the yard, and saw the boys break through the fence and rush for the woods behind the buildings. The alarm was given, and Superintendent Ray and his men started in pursuit of the runaways. The search was kept up through the night, and eight have been captured.

Triple Lynching In Louisiana.

Hahnville, La., Aug. 10.—There was a triple lynching in this town just before 12 o'clock Saturday night, and yesterday morning the bodies of three Italian murderers were found swinging from the rafters of a shed near the courthouse. One of the men is Lorenzo Saladino, who assassinated Jules Gueymard at Freetown last Tuesday night, and the two others were Decino Sorcoro and Angelo Marcuso, who murdered an old Spaniard on the Ashton plantation, near Bouttes station, some time ago.

Wheeled a Mile In 1:63.

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after three preliminary trials, E. E. Anderson wheeled a mile in 1:03 over a plank path. He was paced by a locomotive pulling a coach, and rode a wheel geared to 92. Anderson could have bettered this time a few seconds, but he mistook the signals and slowed up a little too soon. The trial took place near Oldenburg, Ills.

Terrible Slaughter of Christians.

Athens, Aug. 10.—At Anapolis Pediada, near Heraklion, in the Island of Crete, on Saturday, 1000 armed Mussulmans butchered 30 unarmed Christians in the precinct of the St. John monastery. Several priests and women and children were among the victims. One woman was slaughtered after seeing her children and her husband butchered on her knees. Several churches were desecrated, and a priest named Jeremia had his ears and nose severed from his head, and was then burned alive on a pyre of sacred pictures.

Too Bad.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10.—The observation of the sun's total eclipse, visible in northern Europe. northern Asia and Japan, and for which elaborate preparations had been made, has proved a failure, both at Vadso, on the west coast of Nova Zembla and at St. Petersburg, owing to the clouds. Sir Robert Ball of Cambridge conducted the observations at Vadso.

Military Matters.

Capt. Ed. Carr of the Putnam Guards, sixth regiment, in talking to Jimmy Doyle of the Hogans, stated that no company of the militia and few private organizations will have a better rifle range than the Lowell companies when the work on the building in Dracut is completed.

At the Forrest street range, Danvers, Saturday, there was a shoot between Co. C of Lowell, and Co. N of Danvers, which was won by the Spindle City team by a score of 434 to 417. The total of the Lowell team is the largest they have ever made.

Purgatorial Pills.

The druggist would hardly smile if you asked for "purgatorial pills." There are many of them. But he would probably recommend a pill that did not gripe; a sugar-coated pill, gentle in action, and sure in effect. What are they called?

TERRIBLE HEAT

Large Cities Suffer Much From It.

DEATH FROM PROSTRATION ON ALL SIDES.

The List Numbers Over 125 Cases.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The report of fatality, resulting from the heat in various sections of the country yesterday, indicate that the present hot spell will be as disastrous in its effect as a national calamity or plague. The death roll of the day exceeds 125 in the principal cities. In Greater New York, including New York, city, Brooklyn and Staten Island, the number of deaths from heat reaches 60. In Baltimore the deaths were 19, and in Philadelphia 18. Eastern cities appear to have suffered most severely, although the death list in the west continues to be high. The reports cover only the principal cities, and all the fatalities will doubtless swell the list very materially. Following is the death list, so far as reported from the various cities: New York and vicinity, 60; Philadelphia, 18; Washington, 6; Baltimore, 19; Bayonne, N. J., 2; Newark, N. J., 3; Albany, 2; Jersey City, 1; Pittsburg, 1; Chicago, 6; Rochester, 1; Louisville, 1; Memphis, 1; Cleveland, 2; Cincinnati, 5; San Antonio, 1.

Uncle Sam's Silver Not Wanted.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—The Standard bank has given notice that hereafter American $1 bills or silver certificates will be discounted at the rate of 10 per cent. The other city banks will adopt the Standard's methods. The regulations will be a great inconvenience in Toronto, especially where there is a large amount of United States money. Other parts of Canada will also suffer.

Joe Patchen's Great Work.

Medford, Mass., Aug. 10.—Two new world's records for half-mile tracks were made Saturday at Combination park. One at the trot, the other at the pace. Joe Patchen, 2:04, holder of half-mile track records at 2:08, placed the mark at 2:05¼. Cephas, 2:11¼, equalled his own record and made a new record for half-mile tracks at the diagonal gait.

A Generous Gift.

Trenton, Aug. 10.—Daniel Morris of Atlantic City has presented $45,000 to Bishop McFaul of this diocese, for the purpose of erecting an orphan asylum and industrial school for boys. The plans have been drawn and the contract awarded. The asylum and school is to be at Hopewell, 12 miles from Trenton, on a farm of 130 acres.

Williams' Club Meeting.

There will be an important meeting of the Williams' Democratic club in Jackson hall at 7.30 o'clock this evening.

Veteran Firemen's Muster.

The New Bedford league muster committee has received a communication from the proprietors of the Evening Standard that they will offer as a special prize a solid silver cup, for the association making the best display in the parade Aug. 19, the number of men and the appearance of engine to be considered.

The Lowell vets will have to get a hustle on and bring that cup to the Spindle City. Jim Eddy Hill and "Old Mose" must look their prettiest on that occasion.

A Large Mortuary Record.

An unusual number of old residents have passed away this summer. Among the oldest were: Ellen Doyle 100, Susan Gallagher 98, Daniel Hart 94, Diana M. Eaton 82, Catherine Ivers 77, Esther Galier 85, Emeline S. Beckwith 79, Laurent Robillard 93, Martha M. Grover 78, Miriam C. Fisk 86, Catherine Carroll 80, Martha Mulligan 75, Jeremiah L. Shorey 87, Almira L. Libby 81, Fanny Hoyle 82, Nancy Robbins Saunders 75, Mary Mongovan 80, Henry Burrows 79, Philena E. Moxley 84, Helen Allard 80, Thomas Leland 78, Dorcas Howe 85, Catherine Carroll 80, O. J. Belle Isle 82.

In the past two months there have been more deaths in Lowell of children five years of age and under than have been caused by epidemics, which taxed the energy of boards of health to suppress. It is not generally known that 206 children have passed away in two months. Most of the deaths have been caused by cholera infantum.

HIS CONVICTIONS

Determine the Course of W. P. Burbank.

EX-POSTMASTER WILL VOTE FOR BRYAN.

A Sound Statement of His Reasons.

When a life-long and old-line republican like ex-Postmaster Willis P. Burbank severs his connection with his party and declares himself for Bryan and free silver in a logical statement to the public, other sensible republicans are set to thinking upon the merits of the democratic platform as opposed to that of the gold bugs of Wall street.

Ex-Postmaster Burbank, in an interview with the Boston Globe correspondent, states his reasons as follows:

"I believe the present gold standard to be absolutely unjust and dishonest to this country, and responsible in a large degree for the industrial depression which has prevailed, and which, for the past two or three years, has rested on the people with a force which has amounted to a paralysis of all business enterprise.

"I am not in public life, and have no desire to parade my views before the public, but this is not a new question with me. My friends are aware that I have entertained these views for some time. The development in the financial affairs of the government of the past year, and fuller information on the subject, have only served to intensify my convictions. I see no reason why I should hesitate to express them."

"Will you explain why you think the gold standard unjust?"

"I will try to make it plain in a few words if possible. The money of the world, by custom and by law, has been gold and silver from time immemorial. By custom first, and by law for its better regulation to meet the demands of modern civilization. Early in the history of the country, on the recommendation of Hamilton and Jefferson, by law, both were made legal tender at the ratio which custom had decreed from the use of foreign coin, and the mints were opened to the free coinage of both gold and silver.

"In 1803 the mints of France were opened to free coinage, and with other nations which both used and coined silver and gold at a ratio of 15 or 16 to 1, established the money value of both metals. The amount of gold and silver in sight constituted the real money of the world. The amount of either metal in sight varied greatly from time to time. For a long period the production of silver was three times as large as that of gold. Later conditions changed, and for some time the production of gold was three times as large as that of silver. But both by custom were used as money, and by law were legal tender at that ratio. The debtor at all times had the choice of coins, and the creditor received payment in an honest dollar and was not dissatisfied.

"These were the conditions existing in 1873. It is important to know what the supply of money of both metals was at that time, and the proportion of each. The gold and silver in use as money in the world was equal to $5 per capita. This amount was equally divided between the two metals; that is, $2.50 in gold and $2.50 in silver. This was the basis of all credit substitutes for money and served to measure the wealth of the world.

"Now by operation of law, commencing in this country in 1873, and ending with India in 1895, the mints of the world were closed to silver, and its legal tender value restricted. What has been the result? Isn't it plain that $2.50 in gold is performing the work formerly done by $5 in gold and silver, and even more, as the trade and commerce of the world have grown, and isn't it plain that the increased demand for gold has enhanced its value and thus raised the standard? By custom we still use silver, but by law it has no value and stands as credit or token money not in a different position from paper money.

"It is denied by gold standard advocates that gold has increased in value. I will refer those who doubt it to Sauerbeck's table, which is indorsed by the English royal statistical society and by the leading scholars of the world. This table shows that while silver has fallen 7 points from a standard made up of a variety of leading products gold has risen 40 points in the same period. Nobody but a New England editor disputes these figures today, and some of them dispute facts at random and call it argument."

"I am for protection. For the same reason I am for silver, but I differ with my Republican brothers, who claim that a sufficient degree of protection will restore prosperity with the present financial system. It is not a question of revenue, but of gold and gold exports.

"From 1889 to 1893 our exports of gold were net $214,700,000, and this under the McKinley bill. Yet it is claimed that to go back to that bill will stop gold exports. Our great production of gold is urged. This is all a myth. With all the energy put into its production, new methods and all, the increase is slight; a total production of $45,000,000 in this country, about what is used in the arts.

"What would be the effect of free coinage on the industries of New England?"

"That is what I want to talk about. It is certain that we cannot have bi-metallism by international agreement at present. Three conferences have been held within 15 years, and at each English representatives have said, no. Why, was answered by Mr. Gladstone on the floor of parliament at the time the last commission was appointed, I think in 1892, when he said, that England as the creditor country of the world derived great benefit from the appreciation of the gold standard, and used illustrations to prove it.

"This country is justified in taking a positive stand for the protection of its own interests, just as England has done. When we get ready to act I expect to see France, Germany, Italy and many of the smaller countries unite with us, and all the silver countries will certainly do so. This would establish the parity of the two metals at 16 to 1 without friction. If it cannot be done, and this country goes to a silver basis, then will come the great advantage to our mills and operatives.

The difference between the two standards, ours being the lowest, will act as the strongest kind of protection, and the importation of foreign goods will be restricted. Besides, India, China, Mexico and other countries which buy manufactured goods use silver, and will buy of us in preference to any country with a gold standard. Our mills, which have been practically shut, will again export largely. Prosperity will come back to us, and it will be England next time which will ask for international agreement."

"Will not this change bring ruin on the country before it is accomplished?"

"Decidedly no, unless the people most interested not to have a panic bring one about."

"You are aware that the opinions you have expressed are not in accord with the policy of the Republican party?"

"I am, but like thousands of Republicans, I claim that the indorsement of the gold standard at St. Louis was not Republicanism, as indeed it was not Democracy. It was Clevelandism, pure and simple. Both parties in national convention, and their leaders, are on record against it. When President Cleveland entered into a secret agreement with the combination of foreign bankers, to buy gold at 6 per cent. premium, and asked Congress for authority to issue bonds, payable in gold, he struck the key note of a new political issue, the perpetuation of the gold standard.

"The Republican party, false to its traditions, indorsed it at St. Louis. The Democratic party, true to its traditions, rejected it at Chicago. That the delegates at St. Louis did not appreciate the serious responsibility resting upon them was shown when they sang 'Goodby, my lover, goodby,' as the western delegates left the hall, and the party was disrupted, with the west against the east. It will be intersting to read the comments of history on this convention."

"Shall you support the Republican or Democratic candidate?"

"In the one case, I am in favor of the candidate, and opposed to the platform. In the other, I am in favor of both candidate and platform. There seems to be but one course for me to pursue, and be honest with myself. To break the political affiliations of a lifetime is not a pleasant thing to contemplate, and friendships with me have been very dear, but I must be honest with my convictions. I expect to vote for Bryan and Sewall."

"What have you to say as to the probability of election of either candidate?"

"Not a word. I have not given it consideration. No one can form an opinion at this early day."

BRYAN IN CHICAGO, ILL.

CANDIDATE RECEIVED THOUSANDS OF DEMOCRATS.

Mrs. Bryan Also Held Reception—A Day of Handshaking for Both—Party Proceeds East Today.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Thousands of enthusiastic free silver Democrats called at the Clifton House to see W. J. Bryan and his wife yesterday. They came with their wives and babies and children. But it was late in the afternoon before their desires were satisfied. In the first place, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan slept until the middle of the forenoon. When they had breakfasted they drove to the Presbyterian church at Englewood and listened to an orthodox sermon, preached by Rev. Dr. John C. Hill. While there were thousands of eager Democrats calling at the Clifton House to see their national candidate, they were disappointed. After returning to the hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan took dinner and then took an afternoon nap, which lasted until near 6 o'clock in the evening. After that they went to the parlors and held an informal reception. The throng then began to pour in. The Democratic nominee and his wife were kept very busy shaking hands, kissing babies and children until near the time for their departure. They left on the 11:30 train over the Pennsylvania for the east. They will arrive at Pittsburg tonight. As yet they have made no definite plans as to what route they will take from there to New York.

THE INDUSTRIAL WORLD.

Matters of Interest From Lowell's Many Industries.

According to information gathered by the Commercial Bulletin's special representative for this city, the Lowell mills will not only run through the summer on orders, but are better off than most manufacturing cities.

Among the industries not apparently affected by the hard times might be mentioned the Kitson Machine company, which is running on full time. The company is shipping pickers and openers to the Tucapau cotton mills, Wellford, S. C., and also to the Alabama Cordage Co., at Montgomery, Ala.

Josiah Gates & Sons, manufacturers of oak-tanned leather belting, lace leather, worsted aprons and manufacturers supplies, are kept busy supplying orders, although it is well known that trade is slack most everywhere.

Otis Allen & Son, who operate the most complete kyanizing plant for the preservation of lumber, capacity of tanks, 150,000 feet, are well engaged in filling orders.

Jeremiah Clark, dealer in cotton and woolen machinery, is busy. He has recently received at his storehouse a lot of textile and other machinery which he offers at very low prices. Mr. Clark has the largest lot in store to be found in this country. Storehouses are with over two acres of floorage.

FORESTER'S GALA DAY

Arrangements Completed for Next Saturday's Great Event

At Forester's hall, yesterday a meeting was held by the Forester's Gala Day committee to make arrangements annual event to be held at the Fair grounds on Saturday afternoon next. The route and other matters were discussed informally Chief Marshal O'Hearn met many of his assistants after the committee meeting and planned about the arrangement of the various divisions and if everything is carried out as arranged the celebration will be the best ever held in Lowell by the Foresters and that is saying a great deal.

The sports include a base ball game between the Unions and South Ends, a tug of war, two mile novice bicycle race (unsanctioned), three standing jumps, hop, step and jump, shoe and barrell race for for boys, 150 yards for members and ladie's bicycle race.

All local courts are making elaborate preparations to participate in the parade which is to be held prior to the sports at the Fair grounds, and it is expected that fully 2000 men will be in line. Four bands have been engaged for the parade which will form in the vicinity of the North common, moving at 1:30 sharp. The route will be from Castle square, to Salem, to Pawtucket, to Merrimac, to Central, to Gorham and thence to the Fair grounds. The marshals of the various courts will be their chief rangers, as follows:

Court Merrimack, Edward Young; Court Middlesex, Edward McGann; Court City of Lowell, Eugene Sullivan; Court Gen. Shields, John Dolan; Court Wamesit, John E. Maguire; Court Gen. Butler, John Gateley; Court Columbus, M. H. McHugh.

DROWNED IN MERRIMACK

EDWARD MULLARKEY MEETS DEATH WHILE BATHING.

Unable to Swim Yet He Went Beyond His Depth—Narrow Escape of a Small Boy.

Edward J. Mullarkey, aged 23 years, while bathing in the rear of Gage's ice house in the Merrimack river off Lakeview avenue, yesterday morning, ventured beyond his depth, and being unable to swim was drowned. The body was subsequently recovered and removed to Undertaker O'Donnell's establishment.

The deceased was 23 years of age and was employed as travelling salesman for O'Brien Bros., for Portland, Me. He was home for a week's vacation with his family consisting of a mother, one brother and three sisters. He also leaves a host of friends and acquaintances in this and other cities who will deeply mourn his loss. The funeral will take place from his residence, 19 Riverside ave., Centralville, on Tuesday morning with services at St. Michael's church.

Thomas Riley, four years old, residing at 302 Lawrence street, while sitting on the river bank fell into the Concord river yesterday afternoon and was sinking for the third time when he was rescued. His thigh, however, was fractured and the ambulance conveyed him to St. John's hospital.

Not a Candidate.

Daniel J. Donahue, Esq., denies positively that he is a candidate for congressional donors.

IT WAS DECIDEDLY HOT

THERMOMETERS WENT OVER THE 90 MARK.

Thousands Wore Wilted Collars and Cussed Long and Deep—There Was No Air to Be Found in Lowell.

Warm weather? Was it? Go ask the sweet tempered and good natured telephone girls, who while on the constant alert answering calls were almost tempted to use "cuss" words, even if it was the sabbath.

The weather proved a bonanza for the laundry men, however, and good ironers will be in demand for the next few days. Starched collars and cuffs are hard to find today, unless in the furnishing goods store or with some individual that was fortunate enough to have a good supply on hand. Bart Ryan, the vigilant police officer in Skin'em square, who kept tabs on the mercury felt like one who had stolen a march on the weather bureau for he looked cool and comfortable with his "celluloids" while every one about him had their neck linen protected with handkerchiefs while huge drops of perspiration trickled down upon them. It is a well known fact that for several days the mercury hovered around the 90 mark and exclamations were heard on every side of "Hot! Hot!" but yesterday's weather for heat capped the climax. George Meris' thermometer on The Sun building registered 94 and remained so for a long period. At 8.30 p. m. it was 88 and about an hour after went down to 84 and at 11 o'clock, according to Office Ryan's "tabs" registered 82.

The street railroad did an immense business but the beaches and Lakeview were also hot.

BICYCLE NEWS.

T. J. Greeley of this city won a prize at the Wakefield races Saturday.

The Spindle City Wheelmen visited the Winnisimet club of Chelsea yesterday.

The Ipnos postponed their run to Salem on account of the heat.

Many cyclists went to Lynn yesterday.

Played at Cricket.

The Lowell Cricket and Athletic club easily defeated the United States Bunting company eleven at the Dracut oval on Saturday afternoon by a score of 119 for four wickets to 81 for two innings. Burns of the Lowells did phenomenal work in the second inning, clean bowling six of the opposing batsmen.

KEEPS IT HANDY

Lowell People are Classing Them Among the Necessities.

"Handy to have in the house," is an old expression, and relates to those things that emergency demands. Our good old grandmothers always kept a full stock of them, and that is where the old saying came from. Tried and true remedies soon become a part of the household dispensary, and this is right. In those olden days kidney troubles meant send for the doctor. Today, Doan's Kidney Pills in the house are the safeguards against backaches, urinary derangement, pains in the kidneys and all the miseries they bring. They are the sure cure for any stage of kidney complaint and a very important feature with them is that they do not affect any healthy condition of any part of the system. They are simply kidney remedies and do their work. Ladies, far more than men, appreciate such remedies. The constant going up and down stairs and ordinary bending and stooping necessary in house work tells on the kidneys, and having something sure to dispel the complaint "handy" is the right thing to do. Mrs. Charles Slowey, 641 Market street, tells us her complaint began with backache, then soreness across the kidneys, followed by urinary trouble. Going up and down stairs was painful. The urine was scant and pained in passage. Indigestion added its weight, and she was thoroughly depressed. She says: "I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and got them at Ellingwood & Co's, Merrimack and Central streets, and I want to say now I have no more pains or urinary trouble. Going up and down stairs doesn't bother me, and the urine is natural. Doan's Kidney Pills did it, and I now have a box in the house that we all take on the first intimation of any more backache."

Price 50 cents per box; for sale by all dealers, or mailed by Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.
